EPA assuages concerns about Olin Chemical Superfund site

By CHRISTINE KENNEY

WILMINGTON - After meeting in executive session prior to the meeting, the Board of Selectmen voted to approve a collective bargaining agreement between the town and the International Association of Fire Fighters, Local 1370, for the period of July 1, 2013 through June 30, 2015.

According to Jeffrey Hull, town manager, the agreement dictates that those in the union will receive a 2 percent cost of living increase for Fiscal Years 2013 (retroactively), 2014, and 2015. Additionally, fire-fighters will earn 14 hours of sick time per month rather than 15. The agreement also states that fire fighters must inform their managers a certain time in advance if they plan to swap shifts with a fellow colleague.

Wilmington Tree Lighting Promises Festive Fun

By JON BISHOP
Town Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON - It's officially the holiday season, which means the annual tree lighting ceremony is right around the corner.

The lighting, which will take place on December 7th and run from 4-6:30 p.m., will, according to Scott Garrant, feature horse-drawn hayrides, the Wilmington Minutemen with lanterns, cookies and hot chocolate, and the model train display by the Boston Metro Hi Railers Model Railroad Club.

And kids should prepare to meet the man who can declare them naughty or nice.

"Santa will arrive at 6:00 aboard a fire engine from WFD," Garrant said in an e-mail.

People will be able to take pictures with him after he arrives.

Dick Searfoss said that the event has remained consistent.

"We're not doing anything differently," he said.

He noted that the hayrides begin at 4:30 p.m. and end at 6:15 p.m. The lighting ceremony will start at 5:30 p.m.

He said that they're expecting 3,000 attendees. Oh, and everything is free.

MIT Creates Sean Collier Award

By JON BISHOP

CAMBRIDGE - MIT, the university at which Officer Sean Collier worked, will create an award in his memory. Collier was allegedly murdered by the Tsarnaev brothers back on April 18.

According to a letter from Israel Ruiz, MIT's Executive

Vice President and Treasurer, the award will be "given annually to an individual or group that embodies the character and qualities that Officer Collier exhibited as a member of the MIT community and in all aspects of his life."

"Future recipients of the award will include those

Support Small Businesses - Shop WILMINGTON!

By SHARON ADELMAN
CROWLEY
Town Crier Correspondent

Saturday, November 30, is Small Business Saturday. Traditionally held after Thanksgiving, Small Business Saturday is a day to support local businesses and all they do for our community.

Before you stand in line at your favorite big box retailer this weekend, consider this: small businesses stimulate economic growth within the community. According to a Civic Economics Study, for every $100 spent at a local business, $68 stays in the local economy through taxes, payroll, and charitable donations.

Small businesses provide jobs for residents. They donate to local community initiatives - schools, churches, civic groups, youth sports leagues - because they are invested in its future. They add to the fabric of our community by getting to know us, our families, and provide unparalleled customer service based on that connection.

Following is list of our favorite things - suggestions for holiday shopping. The list is not in any particular order - nor is it exclusive! We appreciate all our small businesses. In fact, this holiday season let's all give thanks - and give back - by shopping local. Shop WILMINGTON!

Community Spotlight

The Cleaner Spot Gives Back

BY SHARON ADELMAN
CROWLEY
Town Crier Correspondent

WILMINGTON - Carmon Cunningham believes in giving back to the community. As owner of The Cleaner Spot, Cunningham commits to participating in holiday food drives, back-to-school drives, clothing drives, and other charitable opportunities throughout the year to support the families and residents of Wilmington.

Supporting the Wilmington community is important to Cunningham. "I've been tremendously blessed throughout my life," he said. "I recognize that there are families in need, and if I have an opportunity to give back, I'd like to do that."

This month, The Cleaner Spot serves as the drop-off location for the WOW (Women of Wilmington) food drive. To help families in need this Thanksgiving, Cunningham is collecting large boxes and roaster pans to be used for food distribution by WOW, working in conjunction with the Wilmington Food Pantry.

The Cleaner Spot also issued a challenge on Facebook for customers to fill boxes inside the store with food donations for the Wilmington Food Pantry.

Customers who contribute will receive 10% off dry cleaning orders between Thanksgiving and Christmas.

"We will also continue our winter clothing drive for Big Brothers and Sisters during the holidays, and promote our store as a drop-off location for Toys for Tots, sponsored through the U.S. Marine Corps," Cunningham adds.

Cunningham was recently elected President of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce where he serves as an advocate in support of local businesses. In doing so, he spreads awareness about the role small businesses have in the economic cycle of their community. "We want people to understand that shopping locally enables us to give back. It's a win-win for everybody," he said.

Grateful for the support he has received, Cunningham would like to thank the Wilmington community. "They have welcomed us and contribute to the various charitable efforts we have throughout the year," he said.

The Cleaner Spot's services include environmentally safe dry cleaning, formal wear rentals, clothing restoration, fur cleaning, tailoring and carpet cleaning. Pick-up and drop-off valet service is offered to 150 businesses along the 128 corridor and on-location drop-off is available 24 hours a day, 7 days a week.

"We also do shoe repair," Cunningham adds. "If you break a heel, need a sole or a shine - anything to do with shoes - we can take care of it with our cobbler. He can actually make shoes." Cleaner Spot can even clean and restore your Uggs.

Cleaner Spot happens to be Wilmington's only drive-through drycleaner and tailor. While customers love the drive-through convenience, they also like to park and come inside for complimentary coffee, tea, cookies, muffins, and friendly conversation. "We'll offer friendly conversation even if you come through the drive-through," Cunningham said.

The Cleaner Spot is located at 209 Main Street, Wilmington, MA. Phone: 978-253-0030.

Many locals make the grade at MC

Malden Catholic High School, one of New England's leading college preparatory high schools for young men, has announced that the following local students from Tewksbury and Wilmington received honors for distinguished academic performance during the fourth quarter of the 2012-

2013 school year:
Second Honors - all grades 80 percent and above.

First Honors - all grades 85 percent and above.

Headmaster's List - all grades 90 percent and above.

Tewksbury residents include: Dereck Elyse, second honors; Cole Iovine and Michael Welton, first honors.

Wilmington residents: Cameron Albert, Christopher Babcock and Stephen Cardarelli, First Honors; Joseph Ascolese and John DiFava, Headmaster's List; Alexander Frye, Quinn Reynolds and Nicolas Rufo, Second Honors.

The removal of Beacon Hill in 1811, shown here, was conducted in similar fashion to the removal of nearby Pemberton Hill a quarter-century later. One key difference was that in 1835, Asa Sheldon used ox carts instead of horses. This engraving was published in 1882 in Antique Views of ye Towne of Boston.

'Wilmington Farmer' Asa Sheldon cut down Boston's Pemberton Hill

BY LARZ F. NEILSON
Editor Emeritus

If you were to search historical records for people who have reshaped the city of Boston, you would probably not find the name of Asa Sheldon. But if you have ever taken the train to Boston, you have walked on land that he worked.

Sheldon (1782-1870) fancied himself as a farmer. In fact, he wrote an autobiographical sketch, titled "Wilmington Farmer." But he was much more than a that; he was one of the foremost contractors of his time.

Asa Sheldon (1788-1866) lived mostly in the 19th Century and much of that in Wilmington. Born in Lynnfield, he came to Wilmington as a young man. He lived for a while at the Harnden Tavern. In 1815, he married Clarissa Eames, granddaughter of Col. Joshua Harnden.

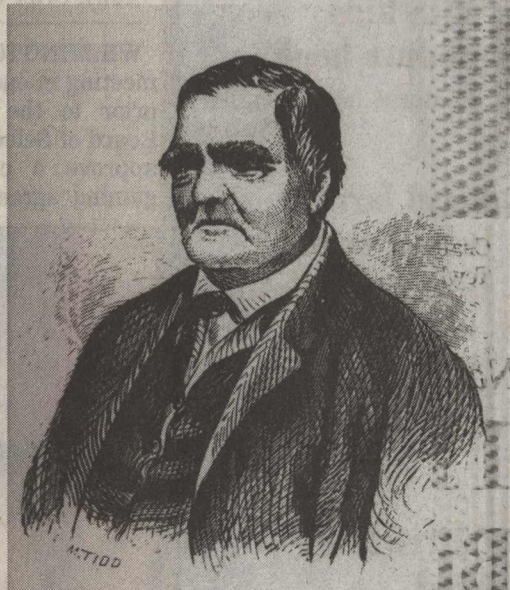

Much of Sheldon's work was on the railroads. He built roadbed and several bridges for the Boston and Lowell Railroad, which opened in 1835. Patrick Jackson, the president of the railroad, told him he would never have to pay for a ride on the railroad as long as the stonework held good. Sheldon also built much of the Boston and Maine line that runs from Wilmington Junction to Boston, which opened in 1845.

In 1835, Jackson contracted Sheldon to cut down the peak of Pemberton Hill.

The area that became the city of Boston was originally a peninsula with three hills, really one large hill with three peaks, which became known as Beacon Hill, Pemberton Hill and Mount Vernon. Of these, Beacon Hill was the highest, so named for its signal light. Pemberton Hill was slightly to its east, and Mount Vernon to the west. The street that runs alongside Boston Common, Tremont Street, took its name from there being three hills.

Over time, people wanting level ground dug into the hillsides, undermining the higher ground. In 1811, Beacon Hill was cut down to a lower level to eliminate the danger of collapse.

Not far away, though, was Pemberton Hill, also known as Cotton Hill. The area included the beautiful estate of Gardiner Greene, the son-in-law of artist John Singleton Copley. After Greene's death in 1832, Jackson set about to buy the estate. He then contracted to have the area developed with greater density and hired Sheldon to remove the top of the hill. He built a small park which he called Pemberton Square, and fashionable city homes were built. The area today would be between Government Center and the State House. For some time, the Suffolk County courthouse was there. Today, the high-rise John Adams Courthouse is at Pemberton Square.

ASA SHELDON

Sheldon hired some 250 men and 128 ox carts. He wrote that he used oxen rather than horses because the oxen could be sold later at a fair price, while horses would eat too much and lose weight. Further, he said, he could harness 12 oxen for what it would cost to harness one horse.

Sheldon hauled the gravel to an area near the Causeway Street, where Jackson built a depot for the Boston and Lowell Railroad. The area comprised about eight acres, filled about 14 feet deep. The excavated area on the hill was about four acres, cut down 55 feet.

Sheldon, wearing his teamster's frock, would circulate among the many spectators watching the job.

"I understand that the man who has taken this job has agreed to do it in six months; do you know if it is so?" said one man.

"I understand he has," said Sheldon, not revealing that he was the contractor.

"Then he is a fool, let him be who he will. He can't do it in three years, if he employs all the men and teams he can work on it."

Sheldon completed it in exactly five months, on Oct. 5, 1835.

To keep the oxen shod, he built a temporary blacksmith shop and hired two blacksmiths, John S. Perry and Stephen Smith. Neighboring farmers learned of their work and brought their animals for shoeing. When the entire project was finished, Sheldon moved the blacksmith shop to Wilmington, and Perry along with it. It was placed on Woburn Street, on a spot that became known as Perry's Corner, and there it stood for about 100 years.

Sheldon's autobiography is in the Wilmington Memorial Library. It was republished in paperback in 1988 as "Yankee Drover."

whose contributions exceed the boundaries of their profession, those who have contributed to building bridges across the community, and those who consistently and selflessly perform acts of kindness," he wrote.

The Collier Award ceremony will take place on February 25, and it will be held at Kresge Auditorium. They will accept no nominations after January 10.

They're also planning a permanent memorial. It'll be located on the garden between the Koch Institute, Stata Center, and Vassar Street, with a possible extension to the North Court.

Both let MIT remember a man who was truly upstanding.

"In establishing this permanent memorial and in awarding the Collier Medal, we honor and celebrate Officer Collier's life, celebrate the many acts of kindness bestowed upon and across our community, and strengthen the culture of caring that is the heart of MIT," he wrote.

Wilmington Superintendent Joanne Benton praised the award, noting that it's a "wonderful way to remember Sean."

"It's a great idea," she said. The requirements—those who have contributed to building bridges, those who are selfless—really describe Sean Collier, she said.

"It's a wonderful legacy for his family," she said. "I think that the recipients will be proud."

She said that Wilmington has its own plans to honor Collier.

"We're going to be focused on a memorial for Sean at the new high school," she said.

ASKED TO SERVE AS AN EXECUTOR?

Being chosen as an executor indicates respect for your intelligence and fairness—but the job comes with challenges, hard work and maybe complaints. Should you say yes?

An executor must find all the assets of the deceased, and few people have left detailed records of what is where. Note: tax returns can help locate real estate, sources of income, investments and retirement assets. And the executor is expected to manage all those assets until the will is probated (if necessary) and the assets distributed among the heirs.

There may be questions—and disagreements—if the will leaves any grey areas. Stay calm; if necessary, consult a lawyer or bank to take over the process. The estate will pay for it.

Take all these issues under advisement when it comes to choosing an executor for your own estate. Find a person (or persons) capable, evenhanded—and willing.

Nature 114th Annual Christmas Bird Count

Soon a group of hardy, local birdwatchers will brave the weather to take part in the 114th Audubon Christmas Bird Count. Led by local birder, Dave Williams, they will be part of a "count circle" centered in Andover. This year will be the 23rd year of the Andover Christmas Bird Count. It will take place on Saturday, December 14th.

The Christmas Bird Count provides critical data on population trends. Tens of thousands of volunteers throughout the Americas take part in an adventure that has become a family tradition among generations. Families and students, birders and scientists, armed with binoculars, bird guides and checklists go out on an annual mission - often before dawn.

Volunteers follow specified routes through a designated 15-mile (24-km) diameter circle, called the Count Circle, counting every bird they see or hear all day. It's not just a species tally—all birds are counted all day, giving an indication of the total number of birds in the circle that day. Some people participate for a couple of hours, others all day all making an enormous contribution to conservation.

Last year, there were more than 2,100 Christmas Bird Counts in North America with more than 60,000 CBC participants involved. Here in Massachusetts, there will be 33 CBC's held this year. Audubon and other organizations use data collected in this longest-running wildlife census to assess the health of bird populations - and to help guide conservation action.

The data collected by observers over the past century allow researchers, conservation biologists, and other interested individuals to study the long-term health and status of bird populations across North America. When combined with other surveys such as the Breeding Bird Survey, it provides a picture of how the continent's bird populations have changed in time and space over the past hundred years. When the count began in the Reading area in 1990, no Carolina wrens or Red-bellied woodpeckers were seen. Now, they are regularly recorded. These two birds are evidence of northward range expansion of these two species.

The long term perspective made possible by the Christmas Bird Count is vital for conservationists. It informs strategies to protect birds and their habitat - and helps identify environmental issues with implications for people as well. For more information and to see last year's results, visit the Audubon website at: <http://birds.audubon.org/christmas-bird-count>

The local group is always looking for volunteers who have an interest in bird watching. The Andover CBC covers the northern half of Reading, most of Wilmington, and all of North Reading. During the past 22 years we have seen over 60 different species of birds during the counts. While there is a specific methodology to the CBC, anyone can participate. If you are a beginning birder, you will be able to join a group with at least one experienced bird watcher. Would you like to participate in this year's Andover CBC here in Reading, Wilmington, or North Reading? For further information, please contact Dave Williams at 781-944-8118.

Shop small and support small business

Small businesses are the cornerstone of any community, creating jobs, spurring local economic growth, and giving back to society. In recent years, small businesses have been overshadowed by the holiday hype of "Black Friday" and "Cyber Monday," which tend to emphasize major retailers. But small businesses have much to offer for holiday shoppers!

For the fourth year in a row, Better Business Bureau is supporting Small Business Saturday and urging consumers to support the small businesses in their communities on November 30th, the Saturday after Thanksgiving. It's the perfect time to take a break from the crowded shopping mall and instead check out the small stores and businesses in your neighborhood. You'll find unique gifts, gourmet foods and more to make your holidays distinctive, fresh and fun. You might even discover your new favorite store!

2012 was a huge year for Small Business Saturday. Consumer awareness reached a reported 67% and an estimated $5.5 billion was spent at small, independently owned retailers, according to American Express OPEN, which launched SBS. Since Small Business Saturday was born in 2010 and officially recognized by the U.S. Senate in 2011, the once little-known campaign has become a movement that millions of individuals, businesses, and communities have embraced nationwide.

With your help, Small Business Saturday could be even bigger this year. Get involved by helping your community prepare, promoting your local businesses, and encouraging your friends and family to "Shop Small." And don't forget to go out and shop at your local businesses on November 30th! The more businesses and shoppers that get involved, the bigger and more beneficial the day will be for local communities.

Resources: Businesses can take advantage of free tools offered online at facebook.com/SmallBusinessSaturday: free signage, free ads on Twitter, and lots of ideas to help grow your business.

Jeff before surgery in 2011

At over six feet tall, Chelmsford resident Jeffrey Reim had always been a big guy. But when he transitioned to a desk job, he really started to gain weight, reaching 340 pounds. He tried to lose weight for years, but always gained it back. Diagnosed with type 2 diabetes, sleep apnea, high blood pressure and high cholesterol, Reim was taking seven different medications.

"I needed a more permanent solution than just dieting," Jeff said. After meeting with staff at Lowell General Hospital's Center for Weight Management and Bariatric Surgery, he decided to have gastric bypass surgery in 2011.

"It has totally changed my life," he says. "I'm an avid cyclist now and ride, on average, 100 miles a week."

Jeff initially lost 150 pounds, and has worked with weights to rebuild muscle mass. And all his weight-related health issues have been resolved.

The best part of his transformation?

"My newfound health and love for exercise," Jeff says. "And not having to shop for XXXL Tall clothes. My 15-year old son and I wear the same size pants now!"

Minority Overruled

While Capitol Hill staffers were suffering sticker shock at the doubling/tripling of their "upgraded" health insurance costs of the "Affordable" Care Act, Senate Democrats eliminated the filibuster and two-thirds majority required on certain federal appointments.

...The 113th Congress is the least productive in history.

To those of us that live outside the beltway, what does the so-called "nuclear option" mean?

Senate democrats are touting the end of the filibuster for most federal judicial nominees and executive office appointments (not including Supreme Court justices) in an attempt to have a simple majority (just 51 votes) pass appointments. Eliminating the supermajority (60 votes) needed for appointments changes the tenor of a political body that, according to the Washington Post, prided itself on giving more power to the minority party than any other legislative body in the world. The move has Republicans vowing even less cooperation, not more. And Democrats should know better, they felt exactly the same thing not so long ago.

Even President Obama, when he was a Senator, opposed the end of Senate filibusters saying in 2008,

"But if the right of free and open debate is taken from the minority party and the millions of Americans who ask us to be their voice, I fear the partisan atmosphere in Washington will be poisoned to the point where no one will be able to agree on anything. That does not serve anybody's interest and it certainly is not what the patriots who founded this democracy had in mind. We owe the people who sent us here more than that."

Following a government shutdown and debt ceiling angst, Senate Majority Leader Harry Reid's move further erodes the spirit of cooperation needed in Congress. When the time comes for cooperation on budget and debt ceiling, I predict we'll see Democrats blame Republicans for it. Shocking, I know.

Surely all of us are sick and tired of a broken Congress. 85 percent of Americans disapprove of the job Congress is doing.

A Politico article Friday posited that the 113th Congress is the least productive in history.

This Congress only enacted 49 laws, the fewest since at least 1947 when the Congressional Record began keeping track. "In the last 66 years, there are just four occasions in which fewer than 100 laws were enacted by a similar point in the legislative calendar. And two of those instances were in the last two Congresses, with the previous Congress making just 62 laws through November 2011," wrote Manu Raju in his Politico piece.

This latest move, to quash the filibuster and eliminate the two-thirds majority, just makes it worse. It is not a move to make Congress work better; it is a move to eliminate the representation of the minority party in Congress - and every person represented thereby. It's a message to men and women across the country that, should their party be in the minority, they are locked out of the Senate.

It confirms the worst fears of conservatives since the Jimmy Carter era - give liberals and inch and they'll take a mile. Look how the ACA was passed - rushed through, without being read, in an attempt to avoid a filibuster after Scott Brown was elected from Massachusetts and his swearing in was delayed until after the vote took place.

Add to the ineffectiveness of Congress, we also have the least transparent White House in generations. Dozens of leading press agencies sent a letter last Thursday to White House Press Secretary Jay Carney, protesting this unprecedented lack of access.

"Journalists are routinely being denied the right to photograph or videotape the President while he is performing his official duties," the agencies write in their letter. "As surely as if they were placing a hand over a journalist's camera lens, officials in this administration are blocking the public from having an independent view of important functions of the Executive Branch of government."

The letter was signed by the White House Correspondents' Association, ABC News, CBS News, NBC News, CNN, Fox News Channel, American Society of News Editors, Associated Press Media Editors, American Society of Media Photographers, Reuters, The New York Times Co., Getty Images, and many more.

The complaint alleges that the White House deems certain events private, but sends in their own photographers and videographers who then release photos and videos to the public on their own terms.

"You are, in effect, replacing independent journalism with visual press releases. The right of journalists to gather the news is most critical when covering government officials acting in their official capacities," said the agencies. "To exclude the press from these functions is a major break from how previous administrations have worked with the press."

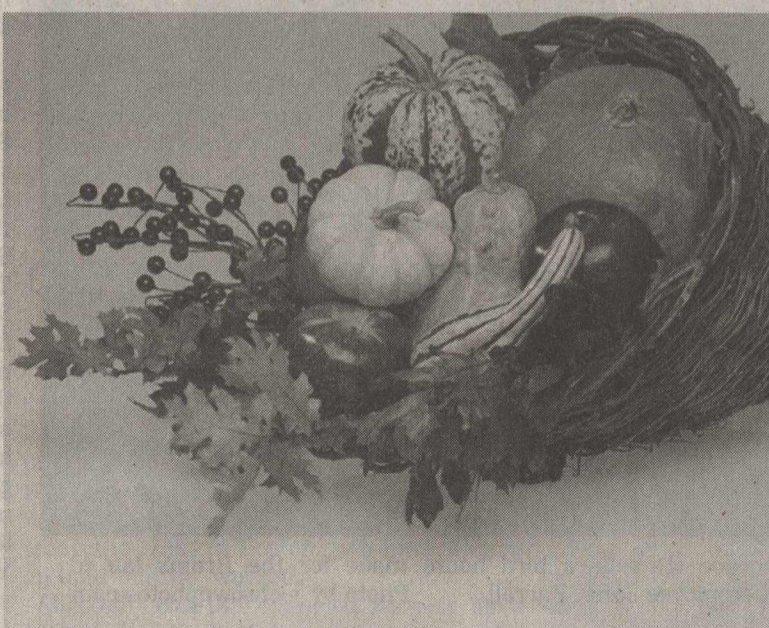

Limiting the press, limiting the minority party (I don't care WHAT party is the minority), ramming through legislation (back when they had the House), raises serious concerns about the transparency of the Democratic Party and their intentions for the future.

Baskets of Gratitude

We once again are in the season of Giving Thanks. Think about that phrase for a moment: Giving Thanks. What is "thanks"? Is it like the turkey that we pass around the table on Thanksgiving Day? Ironically, I am not always a word person so it struck me that "thanks" and "gratitude" are nouns. Nouns, as we recall from elementary school English, are persons, places or things. It made me think of Thanks and Gratitude as a tangible item. It we had a basket filled with gratitude this season, who would we share it with?

Like a trip to Disney World, I have come to look at the holiday season a bit differently as an adult and parent than I did as a child without any of the planning or financial pressures. It is supposed to be a season of remembering how precious our family and friends are but it is also a time of understandable stress. In the midst of cooking, baking, cleaning, shopping, planning, negotiating family dynamics, we can leave our basket full of gratitude in a dark corner of the basement.

to take the extra step and, along with expressing my thanks, sharing my gratitude.

So, I ask you beautiful angels to do the same: in the midst of the chaos, take a moment, pick up your basket of gratitude, and pass it around. Wear it like your favorite holiday sweater and give it freely and openly, from your heart. It will be remembered far longer than any culinary creation.

As John F. Kennedy said: As we express our gratitude, we must never forget that the highest appreciation is not to utter words, but to live by them.

Freemasonry - One Man's Perspective

When my friends and family find out that I am a Freemason, I am often asked the questions, why did you become a Freemason and what is it all about? What offer in return are my experiences and my perspective on what Freemasonry has meant to me.

I have been a Freemason for the past 7 years and I currently hold the titles of Brother, Noble, 32nd Degree Master Mason, Companion and Sir Knight and most recently and one that I am most proud of, Worshipful. Just this past June I was installed the 79th Master of Friendship Lodge, which granted me this title. To say the least, I have been a very active member of the Fraternity. Freemasonry has truly become a large part of my life not only for me but for my family as well.

Becoming Master of Friendship Lodge has given me a true appreciation for the Lodge and its long and proud history in The Town of Wilmington. Friendship Lodge is truly a local community lodge whose members are ready and able to help out not only its own members but the community as well in any way that we can. From our MYCHIP events, Blood Drives, Angel Fund, Handicap Ramp Program, and HELP program just to name a few, Friendship Lodge will continue to be a proud part of the Wilmington Community and I look forward to being a part of its proud history.

I can tell you that the journey so far has been absolutely incredible. I have met men from all walks of life all throughout Massachusetts and overseas (I visited a Lodge in England). Men I otherwise I would not have met and have made friendships that will last a lifetime. For me, joining Freemasonry was truly taking a blind step of faith into a Fraternity, rich with over 300 years of tradition, to not knowing a single person, to having a network of friends that I can truly call my Brothers. For me Freemasonry has taught me a few things about myself and the world around us and about our interactions with our fellow man. Not to sound cliché, but it truly has been an enlightenment. Each man has his own experience in Freemasonry, and the best part of it we are free to determine our own paths within the Fraternity. The more you put into it, the more you truly get out of it.

Being a part of Freemasonry is not only for men contrary to popular belief. Other than what are known as Blue Lodges, Scottish and York Rites, which are restricted to men, Freemasonry also has organizations that are open to women, such as The Order of the Eastern Star and Daughters of the Nile. There are also organizations for young women and men as well, Rainbow for Girls and The Order of DeMolay for boys. There is something for everyone in Freemasonry.

Friendship Lodge, Wilmington

I can go on and on about what I love about Freemasonry, but this is only one man's perspective. Is Freemasonry right for you? That's a decision you alone can make. It's a decision I will never regret. I look forward to the many great years ahead and the new friendships I hope to gain as I continue on my journey thru this great Fraternity. Hu Ke Lau trip 12/12; Zingo 12/3 & 12/10; Blues Brothers 12/13

The Upscale Consignment Boutique will hold its "Intake of Items Day" next Monday, December 2nd from 2:00 to 6:00 PM. The Boutique is open during intake and is a good time to shop. Need that holiday dress? The Upscale may just be the place to find it. New consignors are always welcome.

Those traveling to Foxwoods next Thursday, December 5th are reminded to park along the perimeter of the parking lot; and, that departure time is 7:00 AM sharp. There are several seats still available on this trip. The cost is $25 and includes motor-coach transportation, a casino package and driver gratuity.

The very last day to purchase a ticket for the Red Hat Carnation Belles holiday trip to the Hu Ke Lau on Thursday, December 12th is next Tuesday, December 3rd. The trip cost is $54 per person and include lunch and a Christmas Show. This trip has been opened to the general public... men included.

If one is planning to attend the Friends and COA Christmas Dinner of Friday, December 6th, the last day to purchase a ticket is next Monday, December 2nd. The ticket cost is $15 per person and includes a family style beef & turkey dinner as well as dancing to the sounds of the Perfect Match Band.

DJ Jon Mansfield will be at the Senior Center for an afternoon dance on Monday, December 9th. Those purchasing tickets by Wednesday, December 4th will have lunch included in the ticket price which is $6 per person. Lunch will be served at 11:30 AM and dancing will be held from 12:00 noon to 2:00 PM.

Zingo players should note that regular zingo will be held for the next two week on December 3 and 10th. Due to the GAC Christmas Party on the 17th and the upcoming holidays of Christmas and New Years, the next Zingo day will take place on Tuesday, January 7, 2014.

The Blues Brothers Show will be held at the Senior Center on Friday, December 13th at 7:00 PM.

Tickets are now available at $10 per person; and, will be available at the door if not sold out. This event is being funded, in part, by the Tewksbury Arts Council and the Massachusetts Cultural Council.

This show is a kick-off of the Saturday Night Live and originally starred John Belushi. The show is sure to leave an impression in your mind and make you wish you were back in "sweet home Chicago".

The Swinging Senior Chorus has graciously offered to conduct another Christmas Concert at the Senior Center on Monday, December 23rd at 1:00 PM. Why not come on down and start the Christmas week off with the musical spirit of the season. This is a free event and refreshments will be served.

Tickets are available for the Friends New Year's Eve Dinner Dance of Tuesday, December 31st.

The cost is $50 and includes a family style dinner with the main course being Sirloin and Chicken Pie.

If planning to attend, it is asked that you purchase your ticket/s by December 24th.

The Council on Aging is now assisting Tewksbury Senior Citizen residents with Fuel Assistance applications. Seniors may call Jan or Linda at 978-640-4482 to arrange an appointment and find out what information one needs to bring with them when applying. Some of the household income eligibility guidelines for fuel assistance are as follows: 1 person $32,065; 2 people $41,932; 3 people $51,798; 4 people $61,664. Information on larger families and the eligible incomes is posted at the Senior Center and is also available from CTI. Younger families may call Community Teamwork (CTI) at 978-459-6161 for information on how and where to apply.

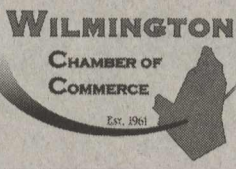

A Happy & Fruitful Thanksgiving is wished to all. God Bless America.

Holiday Drop-Off for Wilmington Food Pantry

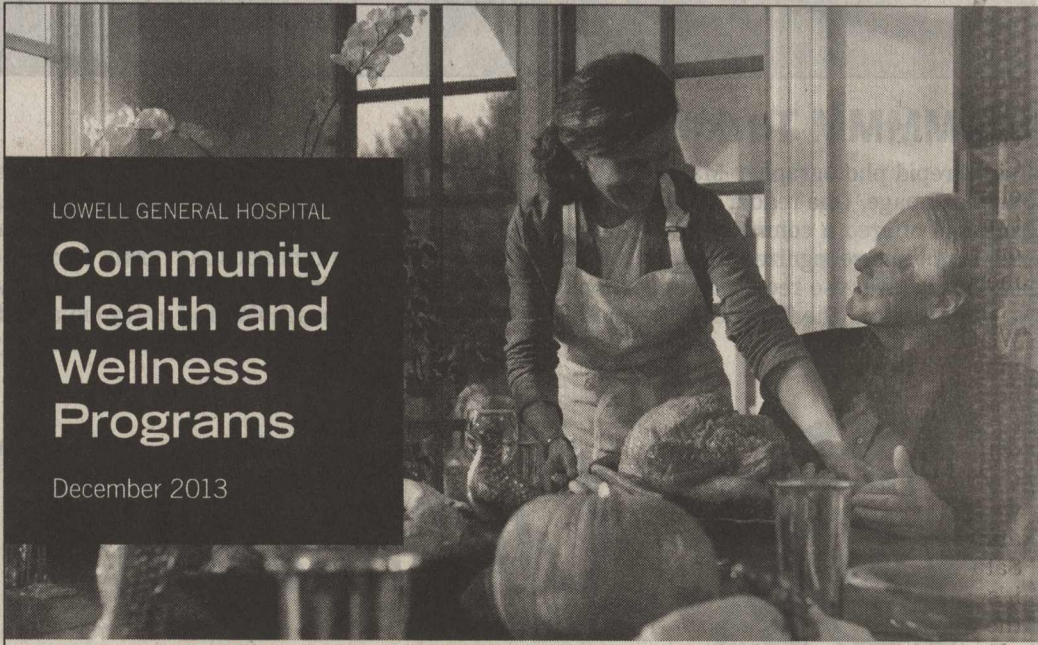

On Friday, December 6th the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce will hold their 5th Annual Member Appreciation Holiday Luncheon at Windsor Place of Wilmington from 12 noon - 1:30 p.m.

Once again the Chamber and its members have committed to providing 60 canned hams to the Wilmington Food Pantry for holiday food packages to Wilmington residents in need.

A greater number of Wilmington families need our help this year so if you would like to donate to this worthy cause, please drop off a canned ham prior to December 6th at Windsor Place of Wilmington Assisted Living, 92 West Street.

MMMMMM Turkey.

Our intrepid photographer Maureen Brady snapped these local gobblers and we posted them for a naming contest on our Facebook page. One reader suggested Yummy & Tummy, which fits the season. But another spotted the third turkey in the back and offered a comment on recent events in Tewksbury with Penn, National, and Gaming for these fellows. One reader thought she recognized them as Fancy and Reginald of the infamous McTurkin family (originally of Dracut), but we're not so sure. We also received suggestions of Lucy and Desi, Lunch and Dinner, and Quickly, Run, and Hide. No matter what, the Town Crier wishes every family, every household, and everyone a fantastic Thanksgiving.

Buyer Beware

There is a new store that opened at the Wilmington Plaza. I bought a few items there and was happy that I was saving some money, but when I got home I noticed that I was charged tax. Which I should have not been charged, for it was clothes I bought. Although when calling them the woman was kind in saying "Sorry, we made a mistake. Please come in and we will refund your money. It was a trip back to the store that took time out of my very busy life."

So please watch as they ring up your items, so you don't have to go back later.

Letters to the editor

Partnering for fields

Dear Editor,

On November 2, 2013 during half time at the Tewksbury / Somerville high school football playoff game, TD Bank made a donation of $6,508.85 to the Friends of Tewksbury Community Athletic Complex (FTCAC). This brings their total donation to our organization to $15,171 over the past two years.

FTCAC is a non-profit organization that has been working to raise funds from private and business sources to help improve the sports fields in Tewksbury. Our recent focus has been on enhancements to the new TMHS field complex. We have been instrumental in having tennis courts added, getting synthetic turf for the new high school field and have numerous other goals for this facility. To date we have collected over $68,000, assisted in the process of a PARC grant award of $250,000, and worked with the CPC (Community Preservation Committee) to secure funds up to $600,000.

To read more about us see our webpage, www.ftcac.org.

Residents and businesses may contribute by joining the TD Bank Affinity program at no cost to them, order a brick with their name to donate, or make cash donations. Here is a link to our donation page: <http://www.ftcac.org/Resources.html>

Thank you in advance for your support,

Keith A. MacDonald

Youth coach: Member Union Local #88, K of C, Open Door Baptist Church

WILMINGTON - Keith A. MacDonald, fondly known to his family and friends as "Keke", age 50, of Wilmington, passed away peacefully on November 20, 2013, surrounded by his loving family following a courageous battle with cancer.

Keith was born on December 31, 1962 in Boston, MA. He was the loving son of Norma (Keefe) MacDonald and Angus (Tulloch) MacDonald. Keith grew up in Wilmington and graduated from Wilmington High School with the Class of 1980. During his high school days as a "Wilmington Wildcat", Keith played football, hockey, baseball, and basketball. Keith got along well with his coaches as well as his teammates and classmates; he was very outgoing and a friend to all.

When he wasn't playing sports, Keith was busy coaching; whether it was with the little league team "Dodgers" with his brother Jack or All Star girls basketball or the girls traveling basketball team with his friend Bob, Keith was always there to lend a hand. Keith undoubtedly loved to teach children and to give all kids a chance; he was a great role model to those he coached.

Keith was very proud to be an American and to serve his country in the Army National Guard for more than 10 years. He was honorably discharged as the rank of Staff Sergeant on January 17, 1992 and often spoke of the respect he had for the young men and women that serve our country today.

Keith was a hard worker, for many years he was a tunnel worker throughout the city of Boston for Union Local #88 in Quincy. His work ethic and dedication to his job made him a favorite amongst his co-workers.

Keith was a man of great faith; he loved his God and was a true believer. In his early years he was an active communicant of St. Thomas Church in Wilmington and a member of the Fr. Croke Council #4982 Knights of Columbus. Over the past decade or so, Keith became a member of the Open Door Baptist Church in Belmont where his dear friend Bob Butler is the Pastor. Keith really enjoyed being a member of the church and with the help of Pastor Bob and his family he was able to strengthen his faith which has sustained him throughout his illness, never giving up hope.

Keith was a "character", he had a great sense of humor and a beautiful smile. Keith enjoyed "hanging out" with friends, he was an avid Boston sports fan who loved to watch or take in a game as often as possible, and let's not forget his love of Karaoke; Keith could certainly belt out a tune.

Keith will definitely be remembered as a wonderful and devoted son, brother, and uncle; not only to his own nieces and nephews but to their friends as well. Keith's kindness and caring ways was also spread amongst a large extended family and countless friends. He will be forever missed by all.

Keith was the beloved son of Norma (Keefe) MacDonald and Angus MacDonald of Wilmington, dear brother of John "Jack" MacDonald and his wife Lori of Reading, Tammy MacDonald of Billerica, and Greg MacDonald and his wife Elena of Kiev, Ukraine, loving uncle of Kara, Nicolas, Maria, Matthew, Cameron, Alex, Rachael, Audrey, and Malcolm. Keith is also survived by many aunts, uncles, cousins, and dear friends.

Family and friends gathered for a Celebration of Keith's life on Monday, November 25th at 10:00 a.m. in the Wilmington Congregational Church, 220 Middlesex Ave. (Rte. 62), Wilmington. Interment with Military Honors followed in Wildwood Cemetery. Visiting hours were held at the Nichols Funeral Home, Inc., 187 Middlesex Ave. (Rte. 62), Wilmington, on Sunday, November 24th from 3-7 p.m. Memorial donations in Keith's name may be made to the Open Door Baptist Church, 300 Pleasant St., Belmont, MA 02478.

Anna F. LaValle

Quality Control Specialist at M/A-Com

WILMINGTON - Anna F. (Porro) LaValle, age 84, of Wilmington, died peacefully at home surrounded by her loving family on November 20, 2013.

Anna was born on June 11, 1929 in Boston, MA. She was the cherished daughter of the late Savino and Philomena (Avigne) Porro. Anna was raised in Roxbury as one of ten children and attended Practical Arts High School in Boston.

Anna married the "love of her life" Albert J. LaValle, on July 17, 1949. The couple moved to Wilmington in 1959, where they raised their two beautiful daughters, Renee and Michelle. Anna and Al had a wonderful life together and their devotion to each other was unconditional. Anna was very devoted to her family, she enjoyed family holidays, and just getting together with her children and grandchildren; they always brought so much joy to her life.

Anna loved to travel; she and Al visited many different National Parks. Some of their favorite trips started in California and they would drive through Nevada, where they would stop in Las Vegas for a few days, they always had a great time.

Prior to retiring, Anna worked as a Quality Control Specialist at M/A-Com in Burlington for sixteen years. Anna was a hard worker, honest, dependable, and pleasant and she made many friends throughout the years.

Anna and Albert shared a passion for dancing. They belonged to the square dance club "Skirts and Flirts" from 1969 to the early 2000's. Anna also belonged to the Wilmington Senior Center, where she made many friends and liked to join in on the organized activities.

Anna will be fondly remembered as a beautiful woman, inside and out, she was kind and loving and will be greatly missed by all who knew and loved her.

Anna was the beloved wife of 64 years to Albert J. LaValle, devoted mother of Renee Cotter & her husband Carl of Sandown, NH and Michelle DeBye & her husband Paul of Londonderry, NH, loving grandmother of Symon, Ryan, and Kyle Cotter, Ariane Chisholm, Pat, Tina, Janelle, and the late Crissy Lunsford, cherished daughter of the late Savino and Philomena (Avigne) Porro, dear sister of Antoinette Christiano of West Roxbury, Cosmo Porro of Norwell, Daniel Porro of Pocasset, the late Joseph Porro, Grace Spada, Angelina Weiner, Dorothy Malacaria, John Porro, and Dolores Johnson. Anna is also survived by many nieces and nephews.

Family and friends will gather at the Nichols Funeral Home, Inc., 187 Middlesex Ave., (Rte. 62), Wilmington, on Sunday, December 1st for Visiting Hours from 2-4 p.m. Immediately followed by a Funeral Service at 4:00 p.m. Memorial donations in Anna's name may be made to the Alzheimer's Association, 480 Pleasant St., Watertown, MA 02472.

Frank Harrison McLean, Jr.

quality control inspector for GSA; Wilmington School comm member; WWII veteran

WILMINGTON - Frank Harrison McLean, Jr., age 88, a long time resident of Wilmington, passed away on November 24, 2013 after a long illness at the Merrimack Valley Hospice House in Haverhill.

Frank was born on September 30, 1925 in Everett, MA. He was the son of the late Frank H. McLean and Alice (Toothaker) McLean.

Frank enlisted in the United States Army in 1943. He served his country during World War II in France and Italy as a tank mechanic. After three years of faithful service, Frank was honorably discharged from the Army on May 11, 1946.

Following the war, Frank worked for the General Services Administration for more than 30 years as a quality control inspector throughout the New England region.

Frank and his family moved to Wilmington, MA, where he became involved in local civic organizations. He served as a long time member of the Wilmington Housing Authority and served as a Past Master Mason of the Friendship Lodge in Wilmington. Frank was elected and served on the Founding Committee for the Shawsheen Regional Vocational Technical High School from 1967-1985. Through the Committee's hard work and dedication, Shawsheen Tech was developed.

Frank was a dedicated member of the Wilmington United Methodist Church. He served as an usher during Sunday services and taught Sunday School and belonged to the Mens Club and Couples Club at the church. Throughout his life, Frank's religion was important to him and he kept strong beliefs.

In his spare time, Frank had many hobbies. He loved to escape to the family's summer home on Foster's Pond in Andover, where he found tranquility by casting his fly fishing rod late into the evening. Frank also loved to repair and refurbish antique clocks. Frank became quite respected within the antique community for his talent and his keen ability to repair most clocks. In fact, he became a Seth Thomas repair expert. Frank was a very talented woodworker and spent countless hours creating beautiful boxes, clocks and other gems. On the weekends, Frank could be found traveling to antique auctions and clock shows from Maine to Texas.

Frank was the beloved husband of Nancy A. (Larange) of Wilmington, devoted father of Frances H. Donovan & her husband Mark Roche of San Diego, CA, Janice Moegelin & her husband Charles of North Andover, Frank H. McLean of Methuen, Brian McLean & his wife Susan of Salem, NH, and he was very special to Linda Hulteen & her husband Kurt of Alaska and Michael Kinney & his late wife Robin of Merrimack, NH, loving "Grampy" of Jennifer Donovan, Ryan G. Donovan, Karla Lockwood, Kristina Moegelin, Meghan T. McLean, Breanna Farrell, Eric McLean, Matthew Moegelin, Joseph Moegelin, Kyra McLean, Patrick Kinney and Christopher Kinney, and great-Grampy of Bruin Donovan, Ruby Donovan and Lola Donovan, cherished son of the late Frank H. and Alice H. (Toothaker) McLean, dear brother of Ralph McLean of Maine and the late Kenneth and Harold McLean.

Family and friends will gather at the Nichols Funeral Home, Inc., 187 Middlesex Ave., (Rte. 62), Wilmington, on Saturday, November 30th for Visiting Hours from 10:00-12:00 p.m. Immediately followed by a Funeral Service at 12:00 p.m. Interment will follow at Wildwood Cemetery.

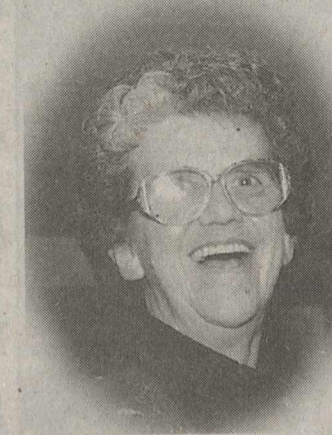

Memorial donations in Frank's name may be made to the Wilmington United Methodist Church, 37 Church Street, Wilmington, MA 01887.

Janet Surette

Homemaker; volunteer; Cub Scout leader

ANDOVER - Janet (Magee) Surette, of Andover, MA, formerly a long time resident of Wilmington, MA, died peacefully on November 23, 2013, after a lengthy illness. She was 80 years old. Janet was the widow of Walter Surette Jr., who died in 2005, after celebrating 48 years of marriage.

Janet was a homemaker and lived for her family. She was a Cub Scout leader for many years, a school volunteer, went on every school field trip, and somehow managed to taxi all five kids to all their school and sports activities.

At one time she was a passionate collector of bottle caps, matchbooks, t-shirts, and music CDs. She took the kids on many roads trips in search of new items for her collections.

Janet was a loving wife, a great mother, and a special Nana. She was loved by all and will be greatly missed.

Janet was the devoted mother of Fredrick Campbell of E. Boston, MA, Arthur Campbell of Peabody, MA, Karen Skavicus and husband Al of Raleigh, NC, Walter Surette III and wife Kathy of Peabody, MA, and the late Daniel Surette, loving "Nana" of Sarah, Derek, and Danielle Campbell, Samantha and Colton Skavicus, Kasey and John Slate-Romano, Brodie Slate, Surette, Shawn Surette, and the late Savannah Surette. Janet was the dear daughter of the late Roy and Ella Magee and sister of the late Muriel Sullivan and Thomas Magee.

At her request, Janet's services will be private. Memorial donations in her name may be made to the Alzheimer's Association, 480 Pleasant St., Watertown, MA 02472. Funeral Arrangements are under the direction of the Nichols Funeral Home, Inc., 187 Middlesex Ave., Wilmington. www.nicholsfuneralhome.com

Students help out EMARC

Students of the Wilmington Catholic Religious Education program recently put in community service hours on behalf of their Confirmation Classes.

The students raked leaves at group homes operated by local nonprofit EMARC. Spearheaded by Deborah Casey, Coordinator for Religious Education of the Parish, the clean-up crews hit the lawns on November 2nd and 16th.

"We were thrilled to have the volunteers from Wilmington's religious education program," said Mark Mahoney, Director of Maintenance at EMARC. "They did a great job and we really appreciated the help."

EMARC is an organization that has supported, served, and advocated for people with developmental disabilities and their families since 1954. Over 900 families throughout the Essex and Middlesex counties benefit from its services. Currently, EMARC operates ten group homes located in Melrose, Reading, Lynn, Saugus, and Wakefield as a part of its Adult Residential Services.

Those interested in similar volunteer opportunities at EMARC can contact Maureen O'Brien, Director of Community Relations, at 781.587.2270 or mobrien@theemarc.org.

On Thursday Nov 21st 13 the Cub Scouts from Pack 56 went to WCTV and enjoyed a tour of the facility by Don Leard. They got to check out the studio, cameras and even got to see themselves on TV! They had an absolute blast! Branden (at the camera), Tyler, William, Ryan, Cyrus, with Peter and Kathy watching the boys. Courtesy photo

Open House Educational Recruiters

Looking for a career in which you can help enhance the lives of others? At ITT Technical Institute we are committed to helping men and women develop the skills and knowledge to pursue many opportunities in fields involving technology, criminal justice, nursing, and business. Our Educational Recruiters interview potential students to assess their educational needs and explain the benefits and objectives of our programs.

ITT Technical Institute
200 Ballardvale Street, Building 1, Suite 200
Wilmington, MA 01887

We will be having open recruiting hours according to the following schedule:

Tuesday, December 3, 2013	12:00 Noon
Monday, December 9, 2013	2:00 pm
Thursday, December 19, 2013	6:00 pm

Recruiting students for our Institute requires a customer-focused attitude, an ability to meet challenges head-on and a passion for changing lives through education. A college degree in marketing, business, or related field is preferred or a minimum of 2 years of direct sales experience in admissions, recruiting, or other intangible sales. This position is full-time and requires the availability to work several weekday evenings and Saturdays.

Standard Electric unveils its first Energy Efficient Showroom

WILMINGTON / WALTHAM - Standard Electric's Waltham branch is now home to the Energy Lab - the first eco friendly, interactive display center that the organization has built to create exposure for energy efficient products and services that exist within the electrical marketplace today.

In order to demonstrate a wide variety of "go-green" offerings available, Standard has partnered with the following manufacturers to present their newest initiatives inside of the center: Philips Lighting, Cooper Lighting, Leviton, Lutron and Cooper Crouse-Hinds. "It's really been a collaborative effort partnering with our manufacturers and bringing into one space all of the current solutions for energy savings," says Fred Forsgard, Vice President of Contractor Sales and Marketing. "I'm really proud of our team and the work that everyone's put in."

Each manufacturer has a section in the room to display their featured products, along with educational take-away literature for the lab's visitors.

An official grand open house will be held on Tuesday, December 3rd for the public to visit the Lab. Representatives for each of the manufacturing partners will be in attendance along with the Standard Electric team behind the project.

"We're all extremely excited that we've finally turned this concept into a reality," says Forsgard about the company's premier showroom. "What started as general conversation with customers at a tradeshow last year has turned into an opportunity to educate and create awareness of today's energy market."

The Energy Lab is located at the Standard Electric - Waltham location at 1339

Main Street. Store hours are 7:00am to 5:00pm Monday through Friday.

Standard Electric, a U.S. Electrical, Inc. company, has been providing electrical supply needs and services to its customers since 1952. With eight branch locations throughout Eastern Massachusetts and a National Accounts division that specializes in retail lighting, Standard is a dominant player in the local market. The corporate headquarters for Standard Electric are located in Wilmington, MA.

Wilmington Educational Foundation 5th Halloween Walk a Great Success!

WILMINGTON - On October 31st, Wilmington kids in grades pre-k to 8th, walked for the 5th time to help make the 2013 Walk for WEF the most successful yet.

Thanks to the efforts of the school administrators and teaching staff, the 5th Walk raised a total of $20,556. We loved to see the incentives and fun competitive spirits of our administrators, which helped drive the success of this year's Walk.

The following are the breakdowns of the school-rounded tallies as of 11/12/13. The amounts below are broken down into both totals raised by the school (left column) and the half that goes directly back to each school to fulfill a current need. The other half translates into WEF grants.

School	Total Raised	½ Direct to School
Wildwood	$1,655	$828
Boutwell	$1,362	$681
Woburn St	$4,258	$2129
Shawsheen	$4,197	$2098
North	$3,774	$1887
West	$4,143	$2071
Middle	$1,167	$584

Congratulations Wilmington and thank you.

1. As Good As It Gets Cafe

Buy a gift certificate to the restaurant known for its breakfasts and lunches. “We shine in our overstuffed omelets,” said Owner Richard DeAngelis. Made with the works to satisfy a real appetite. DeAngelis also makes a flavorful mix for his specialty waffles. “A big item for kids and adults,” he said. Popular lunch items include his Panini sandwiches, home-made soups, and customer favorite - the lobster roll. “We get the lobsters fresh, boil them ourselves, and take the meat out ourselves,” DeAngelis said. “We use the whole lobster in our rolls: claw, knuckle, body meat and the whole tail. It makes for a fulfilling sandwich at just $9.95.” As Good As It Gets Cafe offers a variety of specials every day. “We like to keep the commuter station. Now in a newly renovated space, Luongo looks forward to welcoming you to her family salon. “We do hair for men, women, and children,” she said. Services include color foils, cuts, perms, waxing, and nails. 6. Big Joe's Depot

Under new management as of September, the newly renovated depot has customers raving about the food. “I always say the food has to do the talking,” said owner Gerry Cabral, who designed an open kitchen in the new layout. “I like people to see me cook. I like to create relationships with people.” Sure to please - the “Dinner for 2” - for weary commuters to order on their way home from work. Meals to go include steak tips served with salad, roasted vegetables, potatoes or rice for $17.50 - 20.00. “People are always looking for different options for dinner,” Cabral said. He also pays close attention to food allergies. Cabral and his partner Brenda De Lusua also cater events of all sizes. “We can do anything from a cheese and fruit platter to a sit-down buffet. From an office meeting to a christening, you name it, we can put it together.” Holiday specials will include seafood dishes, roast beef, chicken parmesan, and beef tenderloin - all made in-house, with side dishes like sweet potatoes with honey and cinnamon. “I wanted to go beyond the traditional pizza place,” said Program by visiting <http://tranquilitytm.com/home.html> 211 Lowell Street, Wilmington, MA 01887 Phone: 978-447-1947 Owner Amber Dagata

Giving Thanks through Giving

Wilmington High School requests the community's attendance at their special event on December 4th. Join the English, Food & Nutrition Graphic Design, and Business classes at "Taste of Wildcat Cookbook," an event to promote their interdisciplinary project. The event will be held on December 4th at 6:30 p.m. in the Wilmington High School cafeteria.

At Wilmington High School, the English department, graphic art classes, and the DECA business club have collaborated to put together a cookbook showcasing "famous family recipes" of the Wilmington community. The idea came from Ms. Desberg, who wanted to find a way for her English class to incorporate non-fiction writing with a community service project. With the help of graphic design art classes and marketing help from the DECA club, Ms. Desberg has been able to produce a Wildcat Community Cookbook featuring 75 student, teacher and community recipes.

Both electronic and hard copies of the cookbook will be available for purchase at the event or login onto <http://wilmingtonwildcatwebstore.com/> to get your copy now.

Your purchase will help provide money for the Wilmington Food Pantry to help those who are less fortunate as we give thanks during this holiday season.

And don't forget to come into the High School on December 4th at 6:30 to try some tasty recipes and get your cookbook signed by the recipe's chefs.

"For the past 22 years the Wilmington Food Pantry has helped our town by distributing food to those experiencing difficult times. This has all been possible because of the generosity of the people of Wilmington. People just like you." - Bob DiPalma, Founder Wilmington Food Pantry Agency (EPA) gave the board an update on the EPA Superfund Investigation of the Olin property. After the EPA listed Olin as a priority site for investigation in 2006, the agency has been surveying the property to determine where and how much toxic materials exist within the site and its surroundings.

One of the EPA's findings was that trace amounts of N-Nitrosodimethylamine (NDMA), a toxic chemical, was found in the wells surrounding the site area. However, DiLorenzo stressed that the amount detected was so low that it wouldn't have an adverse effect on residents who are drinking the water provided by the wells.

"It's already out there. Everyone in this room has had exposure to NDMA," DiLorenzo said. He did note that the residents who drink from the wells would have an increased exposure, but not enough that the EPA deems harmful.

Hull asked when the cleanup was set to truly begin. DiLorenzo shared that the EPA plans to present a few different options to the town in 2014. Once the best option is selected, he expects the cleanup to take about three years.

Tax Levy Shift

The board also voted to approve a classification shift of 1.75 percent, so that residents make up about 56.8 percent of the tax levy, while commercial, industrial and personal property make up about 43 percent.

As a result, the average single family tax bill is expected to increase about $345.74 and the average commercial tax bill is estimated to increase about $1,063.

St. Dorothy's land purchase

Selectmen voted to approve the purchase of the St. Dorothy's property comprised of six parcels and 7.86 acres of land. Town meeting approved $1,725,000 for the property. No purpose has been chosen for the land. The purchase was made with fund in the Free Cash account and will not affect tax rates.

Sub-Varsity Sports Season Wrap-ups

By BRENDAN FOLEY
Sports Correspondent

It was another phenomenal season for the Wilmington High School JV Field Hockey team, as head coach Diane DiMaggio led her team to a 14-1-2 final record.

The season initially seemed troubled, as the team fell in the very first game of the season in a heartbreaker against North Andover. It was a dark note to begin the season, but DiMaggio and her squad both rallied to work even harder to never allow another team the same kind of advantage.

"This is such a great group of girls," DiMaggio said. "And they improved so much over the course of the year."

Having been with the program for years, DiMaggio is keenly aware of the pressures that come with advancing to each next level within the program.

"Each level takes a huge jump," DiMaggio said. "There are a lot of skills that they need to pull together to compete. And the intensity level gets higher as you go from middle school to freshman, and from freshman to us."

To succeed, DiMaggio stresses the importance of teamwork, both in practice and in a game situation. While the individual skills, like stick handling and ball control, are very tricky to learn, a team lives and dies based on how the players communicate and work together towards a common goal.

"You have to work as a team," DiMaggio said. "That is important, no matter what context you use. If you have a strong team, everything else will always pull together."

The one factor which the teams struggled with throughout the year was scoring. While they would frequently dominate teams from beginning to end, actually finishing a play with a goal was a constant struggle.

"We had trillions and trillions of shots that just would not go in," DiMaggio laughed.

"She recalled one game in particular, in which the Wildcats assaulted Stoneham with 35 shots, of which only two actually scored. Stoneham did not have any shots on net.

A more glaring example was the game against Winchester, during which the Wildcats rifled 23 shots at the net, only to tie the game 0-0.

"It was very frustrating," said DiMaggio. "We should have been winning by huge amounts, and the girls knew it."

DiMaggio found that her team this year was ready and eager to learn as much as possible, to tackle any challenge that she might put in front of them.

"These girls came onto the field wanting to get better," she said. "That's all you can ask."

This season comes on the heels of the 2012 JV team, which finished with a record of 15-0. Clearly, DiMaggio and her players have found a style that works for them and allows for the strongest performance possible.

"They improve every year, always getting better and better," DiMaggio said. "My expectations for the season were clearly met. They had that rough start but they really pulled it together."

The Wilmington High School JV field hockey team was made up by Rachel Gullotto, Moesha Jane Beray, Cora Vitale, Eva

Nesline, Alexa Peroni, Danielle Gianatassio, Maryssa Muray, Stephanie Sullivan, Jennifer Holloran, Alexis Papagelis, Allie Woodland, Nicole Fletcher, Megan Rhind, Kaylee Gallagher, Jaclyn Fraser, Taylor Santry, Teresa Gracia, Emily Troy, Caitlin Baranow, Meghan Rodenhiser, Audrey Serna, Olivia Hill, Cayman Hardy, and Brianna Kumm.

Freshmen Field Hockey

Laura Connors' career as coach of the Wilmington High School Freshmen Field Hockey team got off to a triumphant start, with her first season concluding with a final record of 15-2-1. For her first year, Connors had tried to keep her expectations realistic, only to find the team impressing her in game after game.

"I was really hoping just to win one game," Connors laughed. "These girls were all fantastic."

With any freshmen team, there is going to be a tremendous amount of discovery and a period of adjustment. Many of the players came onto the field without having ever held a field hockey stick before, leaving it to Connors to try and both instill the fundamentals of the game, and get the team to a place where they could be competitive against other teams. Fortunately, the girls quickly came together as a team.

"We just kind meshed," Connors said. "We all figured out what our niches were."

One of the major learning points for the season was impressing upon the players a sense of finesse and strategy, as opposed to relying on brute force and speed to power up and down a field. High school level athletics require mental agility, something which Connors worked hard to impress upon her team.

"At the start of the season, they would rather barrel through someone than go around them," Connors said. "But they quickly got a handle on the game."

One of the biggest turning points for the season was the first game against Andover. While the two teams stepped onto the field with comparable skill levels, the Wildcats blazed by the opposing team for a victory. Connors believes this victory gave the team the confidence to perform at their best for the remainder of the season.

From the team, Connors singled out Christina Wright for praise.

"She's a pretty tenacious young player," Connors said.

The coach also reserved praise for twin sisters Samantha and Katie Colombo.

"They are both very much on the ball," she said.

But the entire team made a huge impression on Connors, impacting her on a profound and emotional level.

"I love how these girls don't seem to have a care in the world," she said. "You don't ever want to be the person who is going to change that. When you're with them, you can forget about so many of the terrible things happening in the world."

The field hockey program holds a special place for Connors. She participated on the team during her own time at WHS, where she graduated in 1992. Coaching with the school allows her to continue her own passion for the game, and pass on that same joy to the next generation of student-athletes.

"What I want from a team is to see that they want to do better," Connors said. "I want to see that that they will listen to what I have said and give it a try. I want them to have the same sort of passion for this game that I do."

The Wilmington High School freshmen field hockey team was made up by Samantha Colombo, Christina Wright, Sara Carlan, Haley DiLorenzo, Jocelyn Sullivan, Chloe LeBlanc, Brianna O'Donoghue, Nicole Gianatassio, Kaitlin Robinson, Angela Steed, Kayla Martin, and Katie Colombo, and Emily Novak.

JV Volleyball

Colleen Magee had no idea what to expect when she began her first season as head coach for the Wilmington JV volleyball team. An alumni of WHS, Magee had only played volleyball as an intramural at college, and had never coached a team before. But with perseverance, leadership from the sophomores, and energy from the freshmen, the team came together to grow and strengthen as the season continued.

"If you compare our first game to our last game, we did a complete 180," Magee said. "We weren't worried about wins and losses, we just wanted to see them improve."

With nine seniors graduating from the varsity team at the end of the year, the importance of the JV team to teach the game and foster talent cannot be understated.

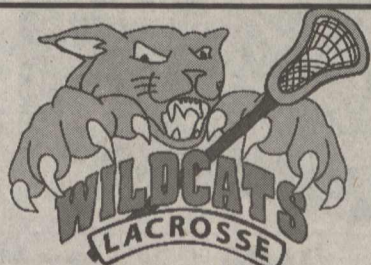

"What we wanted to do was make sure that they understood the game, and that by the end of the season everyone on the court was a real player."

This would have been challenge enough without the added element that many of the freshmen had never so much as touched a volleyball before joining the team. For Magee, the difficulty became to establish the basics and communicate the game in such a way that everyone could get on the same page.

"The obvious difficulty, JV speaking as an athlete, is that sometimes you just don't understand how people can't move the right way. Positions and movements that seem so easy for you are really hard work for others."

Developing talent meant taking practices back to the basic, fundamental level and working hard until it became second nature.

"Skill-building is like a pyramid," Magee said. "You have to get the basics down, and then go forward. I have seen a huge build-up from these girls."

Along with learning the game, it was important for the players to learn each other. This proved to be another difficulty, as Magee found that many of her players' natural shyness restricted communication on and off the court, stunting growth.

"One of the hardest parts was just getting them to knock off the shy thing," Magee said. "It's frustrating because it's like they are getting in their own. Once you can get that confidence, you're golden."

Magee found support in the older players, who served as support for instructing freshman in how to truly evolve as a player.

"Courtney grew in terms of skill, but also in leadership," Magee said. "She led by example, she communicated when there were problems. It was a huge help."

The season really began to click into place in a rivalry game against Tewksbury. Watching her team stare down the Redmen, Magee could practically see the team grow into a cohesive unit.

"It was amazing," she said. "It was one of those turnaround games where everything just started working. Night-and-day from the game that they had played before that."

With one season under her belt, Magee is raring to go, determined to do an even better job with the team next season. Working with the next generation of WHS athletics has rekindled Magee's love and affection for the town, the school, and for the youths who represent both.

"I have to tell you, something about these Wilmington kids, they just impress me," Magee laughed.

Freshmen Boys Soccer

For his first year as head coach of the Wilmington Freshmen Boys Soccer team, John Sarvas tried to temper high expectations with realistic hopes. He saw that the team had a great deal of disparate talent that needed to be molded into a single team that was prepared for the physical and emotional tolls of the high school level of play. With a final record of 7-3-4, Sarvas leaves the season deeply proud of the way in which the team evolved.

"The school gave me the task of developing these kids and getting them ready for the next level," Sarvas said. "The most important thing for players to learn at this level is to lose with grace and win with dignity."

Because the emphasis was placed on personal growth, even the team's losses were occasions to learn.

"They didn't take the loss of their second game well," said Sarvas. "And I could see that they were wanting to blame someone for why they didn't win. So I told them, 'You lost because you let yourselves down.' There's no one else at fault."

Losing the second game ended up being a blessing in disguise, as it allowed Sarvas to emphasize the emotional toughness needed to survive at the high school level, even in the face of defeat.

"We won our first game handily, so they were riding pretty high on that. It's a good thing we lost so early, because it meant they could see that aspect of the game as well."

Coming into the high school level also meant that the team had to adjust to an unceasing pace with practice every day. Sarvas found that the team quickly adjusted to both the physical and emotional demands of the season.

"The easiest thing to learn is the technical aspects,"

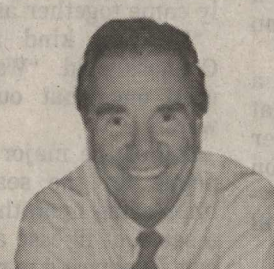

Sarvas said. "The hard part is putting emotions aside. In younger levels, it may be acceptable to be outraged at the ref and get mad. But at this level, you can't be doing stuff like that. By the second week, the boys really had an understanding of what I expect from them."

It was an important tJV

tion for both the players and their coach to make.

Sarvas is a recent arrival in Wilmington, having moved here from Ohio. Despite being involved in soccer his entire life, this season was his first as a coach. Just as he tried to teach the team to play above rash emotion, Sarvas found that he had to work to swallow his player instincts to do what was best for the team. "It's tough to have to stay neutral during a game," Sarvas explained. "As a player, emotion can elevate your game, but as a coach you have to leave that aside and try to lead by example." Sarvas singled out Nicholas Haddad and Jesadakorn Saenchandi as two players who immediately grasped what playing at the high school level meant and led by example.

For his own part, Sarvas is excited to see what next year's freshman team might bring, and to see what becomes of this year's squad.

"They are a very talented group of boys," Sarvas said. "Their future is entirely up to them."

The Wilmington High School Freshmen Boys Soccer team was up by Matthew Abbott, Russell Abbott, Ian Beauregard, David Bell, Joshua Buske, Matthew DeAmbrose, Lorenzo DiMambro, Justin Ekstrom, Alexander Fischer, Joshua Fitzler, Nicholas Haddad, Timothy Kennedy, Donald Kenney, Zachary McCulley, Brendan McIndery, Harley Monteiro, Matthew Morrison, Zachary Richards, Devin Roberts, Raymond Russell, Jesadakorn Saenchandi, Daniel Sirignano and Colin Stanford.

coach Ray Robinson never knows what to expect with every new team that arrives at the start of the season. But when the 2013 fall season began, he had no way of knowing that this year's freshman team would dominate from the first game to the last.

Over the course of 13 games, the freshman girls soccer team allowed only six goals. For their own part, the team racked up 72 goals for the season, for a final record of 12-0-1.

"We steam-rolled over basically everybody," said Robinson.

Robinson attributes the incredible performance to the pre-existing history that the players had with one another. Many of the girls on the team had already played together on club and travel soccer teams, allowing for them to enter the season with built-in trust and chemistry.

"For me, as a coach, it was really rewarding to have a group this talented, because that doesn't always happen," Robinson said.

Because the team already functioned as a unit, it fell on Robinson to try and earn the trust and loyalty of his team. This was a process which got stronger and stronger as the season went along.

"It takes a while to develop a trusting relationship," Robinson said. "But after a while they really did start to coalesce into a real team."

With a team performing at such a dominant level, Robinson put the focus on working with individual players to make sure that all the necessary skills were in place for the players to make the jump to the JV and varsity levels in subsequent seasons. He also worked with the team to ensure that the freshman were settling into the emotional and educational side of the student-athlete divide.

"I think the challenge is that they are in fact student-athletes," Robinson said, emphasizing the first word. "High school really is the next level, and you have to physically and mentally adapt for that. It takes a while to get used to it."

Robinson found that the team did an exceptional job at clearing this hurdle, coming to practice every day with enthusiasm and a willingness to learn.

"The most important thing for them is to develop into the culture of high school sports," Robinson said. "But luckily they got that right away. They represented their school as well as could ever be asked."

Singled out for recognition were Cecilia Chase, who blew away goalies all season long to amass 29 goals and four hat-tricks, and sweeper Julian Mastroirilli, who made a deep impression on defense.

But Robinson was quick to

JV Boys Soccer team nets 13 wins

point out that the entire team performed at a level that he had hardly ever seen before in any of his 34 years of coaching.

"This was a great team from the back to the front," Robinson said. "This is easily one of the better teams I've ever coached. This is something special. I am lucky to have been their coach."

JV Boys Soccer

Dennis Ingram entered the fall season with very high expectations for the Wilmington High School JV boys soccer team. With a final record of 13-2-4, it is safe to say that those expectations were met.

Perhaps the team's finest moment came in a non-league game, when the Wildcats stepped onto the field versus St. John's Prep. With an extended running time, both sides hammered away at each other until Wilmington finally decided the game with a tie-breaking goal. They walked away with a final score of 2-1.

"What we talk about, from day one, is about getting better all the time," Ingram said. "You want each player to be ready for the next level. You want your starters to be moving up to varsity, and you want your sub's to move up to starters, and so on."

With soccer, each step up the ladder is a huge leap in speed, physicality, and intensity. Because of this, Ingram measures the success of a season not in how many games the team wins, but in how the players develop and ready themselves for that next stage.

Perhaps most impressive for Ingram was the dedication and enthusiasm with which his young charges attacked the game, throwing themselves bodily into every play and opportunity.

"Even when they were down, you could see that confidence that, 'This is us. We're going to get this and win this game,'" Ingram said.

Balancing that confidence so that it does not slide into arrogance is a tricky balance to strike. Ingram incorporated varsity styles and routine trips to varsity games to make sure that the JV team understood what they were playing for and building to.

Some players came to stand out. From the offensive side, Ingram named Justin Ledger, Brian Cavanaugh, and Brad Aldrich for exemplary play. Ledger accumulated 21 points over the season, with six goals and 15 assists to his name. For their part, Cavanaugh and Ledger both contributed ten goals apiece.

"Having kids with that kind of physical ability and drive, that's a great weapon to have," Ingram said.

For the defense, Ingram pointed to Deven Langenfeld and Quinton Foley as having showcased what he looks for most in a defensive player.

"These were kids that you could lean on," Ingram said. "You could trust them to shut down a one-on-one and stop the play."

But it was the entire team, working together, that allowed for the season to have such a positive outcome. And not just to win games, but to conduct themselves as young adults, in the face of either victory or defeat.

"I remember that (varsity head coach) Steve Scanlon once told me, 'The most important two minutes in any soccer game are the two that come right after a goal.' All of the momentum is right there," Ingram said.

With a large group of seniors graduating from the varsity team, many of the JV players will find themselves with an opportunity to take center stage. Ingram is confident that the future is in good hands.

"If they keep progressing the way they have been, the program should be OK," he said. "I wish them all the best of luck."

JV Girls Soccer

The Wilmington High School JV girls soccer team has finished a tremendous fall season, coming in with a final record of 16-1. Head coach Mary Jo English worked with her players to create a team capable of standing their own on both the defensive and offensive front.

"This team relied on both a strong offensive effort and strong defensive effort to win," said English. "I do believe we had the strongest starting offense and defense at the Middlesex League JV level. The team did not allow a goal in 11 of its 17 games."

This was an incredible feat, one that the team earned via grueling training and strenuous practice, all the while struggling with the realistic constraints of time.

One of the biggest challenges is competing against time," said English. "There are nine weeks in a season, or only 50 days of soccer. Eighteen of them are game days. Thus, there are approximately 30 practice days to outline expectations and goals, and then to work to achieve them."

It helped that many of the players on the team were carry-overs from the 2012 season, when the Wildcats went undefeated for the season. Having such a great foundation engendered a drive to win.

"Those players enjoyed the success we had in 2012 and had the mentality in 2013 that they simply did not want to lose," said English.

Having such a familiar crew to work with was a great benefit to English, who maintains her system from season to season, refining talent and mastering skills through repetition and trust.

"I really don't change the approach to a season," said English. "It is structured and we work hard. I try to develop a level of trust with my players to show them that through hard work and mutual trust, they will see individual and group results."

We try to break the game down in practice so that anything that happens in a game is familiar territory."

After losing their first game of the season, to great emotional distress on the part of those who recurred from the previous season. But English found that this early set-back only lit a fire in her players, propelling them to work even harder than ever before.

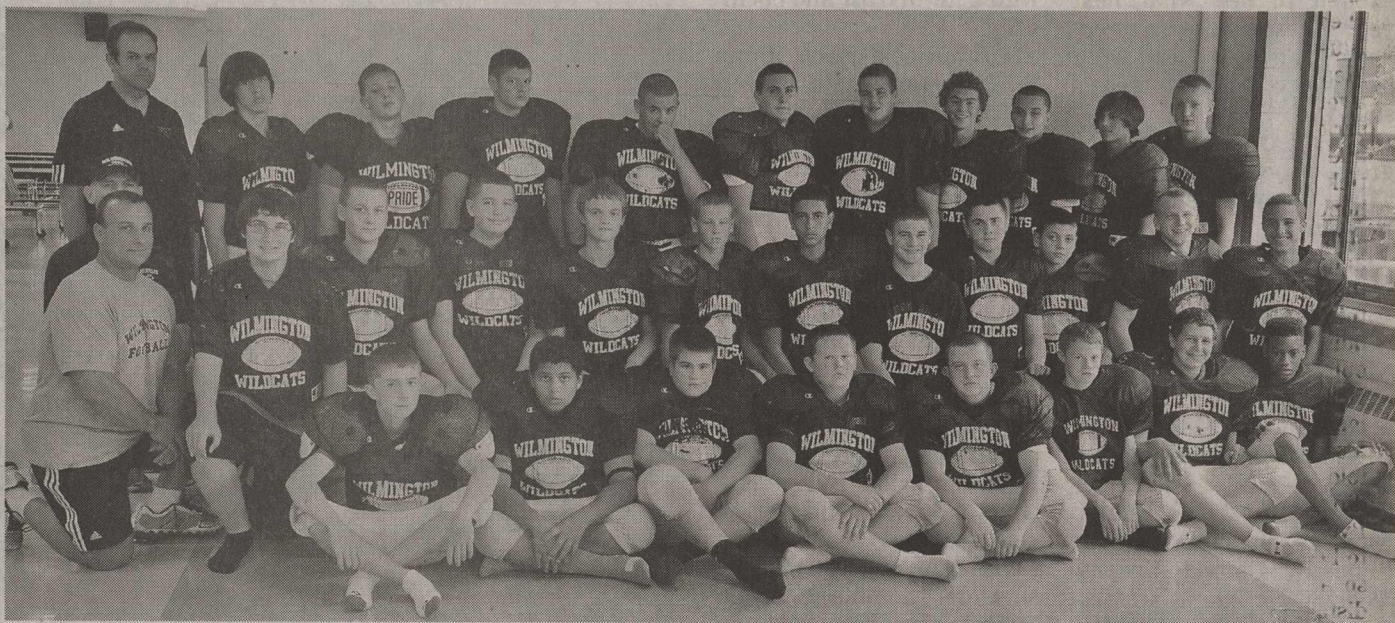

"The most important qualities for a student-athlete to succeed at the JV high school level are a willingness to work, be relentless, to play with a fire in their belly and to love the game," said English. "They need to stay focused, because the length of the season is short and they need to be committed to trying to improve daily."

The team was perfectly orchestrated on every front, offensive and defensive.

"The offense and defense were both fantastic," said English. "Our starting forwards, Sam Pitzi, Sammy Rideout and Ashley Warren scored the majority of our goals. The midfield was anchored by the passionate play of co-captain Amber Peach, the steadiness of co-captain Jess Buske and Erin O'Connor, who was probably our most improved player."

With these girls leading the assault, it fell to the defense to make sure that no goals were ever answered back in kind.

"On defense, Brittany Garrard was the most impressive JV defender I saw all season on any team," said English. "The defensive unit of Krista Tedesco, Britt Garrard, Ruby Nuzzo and Franny Barone were solid and functioned really well as a group. In net, Lauren Mulligan worked extremely hard over the summer, was vocal in net and played every minute of every game."

With another season down, it is time to reflect on achievements and ready for whatever comes next.

"I'm extremely proud of this group of girls," said English. "I pushed this team hard to improve and the kids of all skill levels responded. They had pride, they wanted to continue their winning ways from the past and they really had a lot of fun while experiencing a very successful season."

Freshmen Football

Thanks to a sterling effort from the team, the Wilmington High School Freshman Football team managed to finish with a winning record, closing out the year with a record of 6-5. The group overcame a series of injuries and other setbacks to finish the season on a strong note.

"These kids really came together," said coach Kevin Riley. "The coaching staff could not be happier with the season. I can't say enough good about them."

Many of the kids on the team had little to no experience with the game of football prior to the start of the season. However, this may have ended up being beneficial for the team. Because they had not had previous experience with the team, they were not bothered by this season's need to shuttle back and forth between the high school and Glenn Road field for practices, something that the older teams had to adjust to.

"They really didn't know any different," Riley said. "They were really great about it, never raising any complaints or giving us coaches a hard time."

A history teacher at WHS, Riley is uniquely suited to see to the needs of the young players as they struggle to balance the student and athlete divide. Riley understands the physical toll that the game takes on the boys.

"The toughest part is the whole physicality of the game," Riley said. "And that extends across every level of the program. This is a tough sport."

Along with the physical debilitation process of practice and games, the players must also tend to the onrush of work from the high school. To keep an eye on this, the coaches monitor the players at two week intervals. Riley and his fellow coaches were adamant that the "student" part of the student-athlete divide received the priority.

"They are one person on a unit out there," Riley said. "The most important thing for a player to be is unselfish. That is one of the most important characteristics you can have, and not just for football."

Riley found that each of the boys on the team this year were more than capable of meeting that challenge and surpassing it.

"They each understood what they were committing to when they took the field," Riley said.

Of the 29 players who came out for the freshman team at the beginning of the season, all 29 remained with the team.

"They all stuck with it," Riley said. "And some of these guys have tremendous potential and are right on the ball of being ready for the upper levels."

Riley declined from singling out any one player as standing above the others. As he stressed over and over again, it was as a team that they failed, and it was a team that they succeeded.

"We just wanted them to understand that what they are doing as a team, right now, this is special," Riley said. "I hope that they take away friendships that will last for years to come, and that they'll always know that they have each other's backs."

JV Football

The Wilmington High School JV football team finished their season with a final record of 4-6. Despite the losing record, coach Rich DeLucia had a great deal of pride in the way the team grew and improved over the course of the season.

"We have a good nucleus of kids on the team," DeLucia said.

The JV season featured a great deal of movement in the ranks, with players shifting from position to position in order to cover injuries and holes in the roster. DeLucia found that the young men on the team were very receptive to the changes, and willingly met any obstacle that the season presented them with.

"They did whatever we asked of them," DeLucia said. "They just wanted to play football."

Making things even more difficult was the lack of practice time afforded to the JV team. Because of scouting assignments for the varsity, there was only a finite amount of time that could be devoted for the team itself to train. This was a huge, almost crushing workload, which greatly restricted the team. But the players did not let that stop them.

"It takes a different kind of kid to do that," DeLucia said. "That kind of workload is difficult for anyone, let alone a 15 year old young man."

It fits with the core definition of the JV team, which DeLucia views as being "the ultimate teammate." Because the emphasis is placed more heavily on supporting the other levels of the program, it leaves little time for focus on the JV team itself. But this is ultimately something that is integral to the basic game of football.

"Individual accomplishment is always secondary. I'm not putting down other sports when I say that football is the ultimate team sport," DeLucia said. "Football is the only team sport that you truly rely on those other 11 on the field with you to succeed."

Beyond that, there is also the physical reality that the players need some time to grow and develop.

"Some of these kids just need to play football more," DeLucia said. "In a little while these kids will all be bigger and stronger and will do better in the weight room. It just takes time."

Again and again, DeLucia found that the young men on the team were more than up to the task. Even with a losing record, the Wildcats displayed great attitude and effort, which is all that DeLucia and the other coaches needed to be happy with the team.

"I'd rather have a worse record with better character of kids, then a great record with a lousy group of kids," he said. "That's what the game is about."

The team dynamic was so entrenched into the identity of the group that DeLucia declined to single out any one player as being exemplary above the others.

They all at some did something that would be considered exemplary," he said. "Each and every kid on the JV team had that moment at different points in the season."

It left DeLucia with a positive feeling about not only about the season and about the program, but about the prospects of the players for whatever they choose to do after this school and this game.

"My impression of these kids is that hopefully they will go to the varsity team and have a better record, but in six and seven years, they absolutely will be better people."

Part 4 of Cookie's Inspirational Series

Jon Meads - WHS Class of 1961

By RICK COOKE
Sports Correspondent

The Webster's Dictionary definition of a renaissance man is one sentence in length plain and to the point. It defines the term as 'a man (or woman) educated in many things.' That one sentence definition sums up what Jon Meads, Wilmington High School graduate Class of 1961, is all about, although there is nothing quite that simple about Meads. Jon is a member of a most unusual and multi-talented class. They are scholars, and athletes, mothers, fathers and grandparents. Some of them might even be great-grandparents. I didn't have the time to delve into family trees, but if I've missed anything, I'm sure that I'll hear about it.

Meads, like many of his classmates, loves to study and learn about just about everything under the sun. There is a particular fondness for math, and the ability to prove (and check) every answer in the Blue Book of life. When Meads was told that I needed a fourth dance partner for my series on inspirational people and just what makes them tick, he seemed genuinely honored and surprised at the same time. Meads' lifetime of achievements and the way that he went about getting to this point in time fit the bill quite nicely. In fact, he turned out to be a perfect fit. Delightfully quirky and opinionated, Meads let loose with a series of tales that had to be told in a way that was quite different from anything that I've ever done. The man had to be quoted almost verbatim, so after over a year of long-distance email-driven conversations, I decided that no matter how lengthy the stories were, they needed to be included here.

If anyone finds the man to be any less than inspiring on any level, please let me know. I will stand here willing to be corrected. But I doubt that is going to happen anytime soon with this story. No one—not even Meads himself, or anyone involved with the Class of 1961, should be taking out the red correction pen anytime soon. This is a story that stands out, and on that point I couldn't possibly be more right. This is the fourth (and next to last) installment in the 'Inspiration' series, and the journey would be far from complete without including someone of Meads' character and innate ability to connect with people from all walks of life. Here is Meads' story, told mostly in his own words.

Big achievements in a smaller package

I attended the Class of 1961's 50-year reunion with legendary coach and math teacher Frank Kelley as a way to promote Kelley's story and to connect with his former students, many of whom had purchased and enjoyed the book that I had written about Mr. Kelley in 2010. That class was largely responsible for the overflow crowds lining up at the various events over the course of that wonderful year. Mr. Kelley loves the people that made up that class, and he has a particular fondness for Meads, leading me to seek out Jon for a series that had been percolating in my head for some time.

On that night I asked Mr. Kelley if he would introduce me to Jon. Truthfully, I expected to see a man much larger in stature. When the coach pointed Meads out to me, Jon was standing at the podium preparing to address his classmates. I had no idea that I was looking for a 70-year-old man who was built rather close to the ground. Meads was barrel-chested and had the look of a pit bull ready to pounce. "That guy is Jon Meads?" I asked Mr. Kelley. It turned out that this was just another case of bigger things coming in smaller packages. When he began to speak, I knew that there was nothing small about Jon Meads. The soft-spoken man was tough and intelligent in more ways than one—and most importantly, he was beloved by the Class of 1961.

After briefly speaking with Jon that night, we began exchanging emails over the course of two years. This was destined to be a long-distance conversation with Meads, who lives in the Seattle suburb of Kirkland, Washington. Soon I would learn that Jon had been a speaker and a panelist at a number of computer-related conferences. He has also taught computer graphics at Portland State University and has lectured on user interface concepts and techniques. He is currently semi-retired, but still a principal consultant for the company he founded, Usability Architects Incorporated.

Meads, who turned 70 in August, is a dad to grown sons Nathan and Tim, and a devoted partner to Linda, his long-time girlfriend. Jon is also a rugby player, rodeo bull-rider, researcher, computer systems developer and mathematician. When taken at face value, this all seems to be an eclectic collection of interests and career choices. When Meads talks about his life, he sees everything as no big deal. Even his battle with prostate cancer is told rather matter-of-factly. What is 'big' about this smaller man is attitude. A winner keeps moving forward in life. Meads has never backed away from a challenge, even as recently as this year, when he came back from hip replacement surgery to play rugby again.

"I never really thought I was a short person"

"My height is 5'4" on a good day," Meads jokes. "Although I've been kidded about my height since high school, I've never really thought that I was a short person. It wasn't until I was in my mid-30's that I realized that people my size were considered to be short. I don't think that my height has changed much since high school, although my right leg seems a bit shorter since my hip operation. My weight has definitely changed. When I first went out for football in the ninth grade, I weighed less than 100 pounds. I kind of surprised everyone when I took down much bigger teammate Winston Fairfield during practice. By my senior year at Wilmington High School, I weighed about 123 pounds. The school had a boxing tournament that year and they put me in the 130-pound weight division so that I wouldn't be boxing against freshmen. I packed on some weight that summer and was about 127 pounds when I tried out for the Boston College freshman football team. During my best rugby years I weighed about 145. I'm now a little overweight at 170 pounds."

Overweight? Try telling that to a rugby player decades younger than Meads when this 'little' man drives that player to the ground.

Back playing rugby after hip surgery

"It's been eight weeks since the hip was replaced," said Meads after his recent surgery. "I was out of the hospital a day and a half after the replacement and was walking without crutches two weeks later, and was able to run as a sideline judge in rugby, although my running was somewhat limited. I feel like a laggard, since my brother Robin was out and active the day after his hip replacement. The unfortunate thing about having this procedure is that I need to avoid having contact from the side, since that could shatter my femur and leave me in a wheelchair for the rest of my life. I was really looking forward to playing rugby about 18 months after the surgery, so I could keep whomping away on kids in their 20's while I'm in my 70's. But I can't complain. A year ago last November, my local rugby club went down to Huntington Beach to play in a social division. An organizing error had us playing in the Gold Division against some of Southern California's best clubs. So at 67 I was playing Division I rugby again. At this point I considered myself to be retired from active play. Depending on how things go, I might be tempted to give it another go."

Let's fast-forward to an email from Meads that I received on September 30 of this year. I can't say that I was the least bit surprised by the details. The bulldog mentality that dominates Meads' personality was back and chomping at the bit, ready to regain that competitive edge.

"Just for your information Rick, I'm back playing rugby. I played my first real game since my hip replacement. We have a United States Army orthopedic surgeon on the team, and he thinks that I'm completely nuts. But I couldn't stand being on the sidelines anymore. I went out and played against the over 40's team. I definitely need to get back into shape."

Meads' inspirational story takes shape

"I'm currently living in Kirkland, a suburb of Seattle, with Linda, my partner and friend for over 20 years. I spent quite some time living in Portland, Oregon and Ottawa, Ontario. I managed to graduate from MIT after leaving Boston College many years ago. The BC administration and I had a bit of a disagreement regarding how the school should be run, and one of us had to go. As luck would have it, I got the short straw and began casting about for other things to do. A friend suggested that I apply to MIT, and I figured that would be a good ruse to let me parents down easily. So I applied and began to come up with a plan to travel across the United States, Europe and South America—and God only knows where else. Then MIT did a very stupid thing—they accepted me—which meant that all of my traveling plans went up in smoke. That was just one of the first unexpected paths my life would take. By the time I graduated, I was married, with a son coming a year later. After a couple of jobs and the adoption of a second son, I took a job in Portland, Oregon, where I would spend the next 17 years.

"During my years in Oregon, I was primarily working as a software engineer and manager. I managed to get shanghaied into various software positions for the major professional society for computer scientists. Soon after moving to Oregon, I was co-opted to lead a small special interest group on computer graphics and with a professor at the University of Colorado, started the SIGGRAPH Conference, which today attracts thousands of attendees, with a good contingent of Hollywood special effects people. I also was appointed as the Finance Committee Chairman for the Association and then was elected to the Board of Directors. All of this provided me with an opportunity to meet and become friends with many of the people who would go on to make major contributions in the computer science field over the years. Because of this, I never made an investment in Microsoft because I always considered their software to be sub-par, and I figured that they wouldn't last. Getting rich was never one of my priorities, and I have always excelled at avoiding getting rich.

"From there, I moved to the field of human-computer interaction and found myself co-chairing a major international conference here in Seattle which set a record for innovations for fun and profit. There is no question that we put a scare into a few people in the computer association, as they perceived me as a wild man on the loose, taking too many chances."

Rugby becomes a lifelong passion

Since they didn't have a football team at MIT, I began playing rugby—which would become a lifelong passion for me," notes Meads. "I really liked the attitude and character of the game, and I continued playing after school with the Boston Rugby Club and then played with the Portland Rugby Club—affectionately known as 'The Pigs'—where I picked up the not always flattering nickname, 'The Troll'. The name comes from my habit of going into the middle of a pile of players and coming out with the ball. I was then able to bring it across the goal line, coming out of the pack so swiftly that no one noticed that I had the ball. One of the opposing players swore that I must have gone underground to eventually score, and labeled me 'The Troll'. I have even listed myself under that name in the phone book so that my rugby friends across the country could find me. After being stuck with that moniker, I helped to found the Jesters RFC, a club which has since changed its' nickname to protect the guilty. I also began traveling with rugby teams around the United States, Canada and England.

A computer conference in Houston turned into a real adventure for Jon Meads when a friend entered him in a bull riding competition. This photo was taken at the precise moment when the bull was at the top of his jump and Meads was coming down. Jon was soon off the bull and flying in the air. This bull, known as 'Black 202' was one of the toughest draws that day, as the rider immediately following Meads didn't even clear the chute before being tossed off his ride.

"I'm still playing at the age of 70. I figure that I have two responsibilities when I'm out there playing and competing against kids in their 20's. One is to help them understand the spirit of the game to respect the opposition and to make sure that the contest always remains a hard-hitting game between friends. The other responsibility would be to teach the young players respect for their elders.

"After I had been diagnosed with prostate cancer, I was well enough after surgery to begin playing again. In one of my first games back, I was put out there as a 'prop'—which is a position in the rugby scrum where the opposing teams bunch-up and push each other about in an attempt to heel the ball out to your own side of the field. My opposition was a young fellow about 24-years-old and twice my size. Using my years of playing experience and a little treachery combined with some leverage, I was pushing this kid all over the field. After the game, I felt that it was only appropriate that I point out to this kid that I was in my 60's—and wearing diapers after my surgery."

Rugby turns into rodeo

"One of the first things I did when I got to Oregon was to locate the local rugby club and get into playing again. I soon became friends with a full-blooded Sioux Indian—John 'Dog' Spence—who also played rugby. One week he gave me a call and asked if I wanted to go to the rodeo that weekend. It seemed like a nice 'western' thing to do. When I got to the rodeo, my friend told me that there would be a certain 'cost' for my 34 dollar ticket. It seemed a bit much for the cost of a ticket. It turned out that the money was a registration fee. My friend had entered me in the bull-riding competition. I looked at him and explained that I knew nothing about bull-riding and I had hardly ever been on a horse. I had no idea of how to ride a bull. He told me that it was simple all I had to do was hang on. Maybe I could do that. But how do I get off? My friend told me that it was simple. You let go.

"I rode my first bull that day and it took a couple of weeks to recover from the pain. My friend got me a few more rodeo appearances after that one. Eventually, the computer association held a conference in Houston and I found out that one of the social events was a rodeo. I entered, but didn't tell anyone in the association. The local cowboys heard that there was this guy from Oregon entered in the rodeo and I found out later that they thought that I was a professional cowboy. While I'm getting prepared and rosinning up the rope, a few of the 'real' cowboys came over to have a chat. They told me that I had drawn the meanest bull on the circuit—Black 202.

"When I raised my hand and signaled that I was ready to ride, the gate swung open and all hell broke loose. The bull charged out of the gate so fast that I was almost left behind. I was barely hanging on when the bull decided to take a huge leap in the air. When he started coming down, I was still on my way up. I think that I must have flown in the air a good 20 yards. My only consolation was that they ran Black 202 through the gate again and the second rider one of the locals—never even cleared the gate."

Onto other adventures

"Between raising two boys, playing rugby, riding bulls and a few other things, life in Portland was very interesting and I made a few friends there. As is the case with everything in life, things change. After 18 years and several jobs later, I received an offer from Bell Northern Research (Canada's equivalent of Bell Labs) to join their Corporate Design Group. It came at just the right time. Both kids had moved out, my girlfriend at the time decided to call it quits, and the dog had died. I took it as a sign that I should consider moving on. I had only been in Ottawa for one day in my life (for the job interview) and it was my chance to energize my life.

"Getting off the plane and collecting my luggage, I heard this voice boom out 'Hey Meads!' It was a Canadian computer scientist I knew from years back. It turned out that he was working for Canada's National Research Labs and knew some of the people I would be working with. I guess that you can run but you can't hide. But seriously, the stay in Canada turned out to be some of the best years of my life. I quickly located one of the local rugby clubs—actually, it turned out that I was running into some guys who played with the Bytown Blues Club every time I turned around. I wasn't too sure how they would accept an undersized American for their club, but I did manage to make sure they knew I was certifiably stupid when during an indoor winter practice in December I ran point-blank into a spiral staircase while trying to keep the ball away from another player. The slice in my skull was good for about 15 stitches.

"Again, all good things must come to an end and I began thinking about a return to the States. I had started dating Linda—who lived in New York City—and the writing was on the wall that Bell Northern Research was going the Way of Bell Labs, so I began looking for another job—preferably one in the Pacific Northwest. I lucked-out and got a position with a software subsidiary of Halliburton Corporation that was developing software for geophysical exploration. When they interviewed me, they told me that the job would be in either Seattle or Houston and I told them that I didn't want the job if it was in Houston.

"About a month later, they called me and said that the job was in Seattle; so I took it. However, six months later, they told us that they were moving everyone to Houston. And I told them—'nope, not everyone.' I was able to find some part-time contract work in human-computer interaction before I went into my own business, starting a consulting firm and I talked Linda into moving out west with me.

Actually, I kidnapped her cat, so she had to move. It's hard to believe that was 16 years ago and she's still talking to me. Soon after Linda made the move with me she took on the responsibility of managing the administrative side of my company. I'm pretty much retired now, but we still have several people working through the company on a subcontracting basis, so now I'm the principal administrator and Linda is free to do the things that she loves. (Editor's note: one of those 'loves' is not riding a motorcycle).

"Last year I had to do something that I've been promising myself ever since I moved to Ottawa. I replaced the motorcycle I left behind in Portland when I moved to Ottawa, and I'm now riding around on a bike that has enough power to scare the hell out of me. Linda refuses to get on it, even when it's parked in the garage; so my riding is just solo trips to wherever. The secret to riding it is to avoid becoming one with the road."

The journey north

It has been 50 years since Meads roamed the halls of his beloved Wilmington High School, so it was fitting that many of his classmates arrived back in time to enjoy a tour of the old building about two years before plans were finalized for the new WHS. Meads never hesitated when it came to make the long journey back to attend his the reunion of the Class of 1961 at the Holiday Inn in Tewksbury. Not only was it a night to remember, but for Meads and Linda it was a pleasure trip well worth taking.

"The trip was the fifth that we had taken across the country. On the way we travelled up to Glacier National Park and then across Montana, then down I-94 to the Theodore Roosevelt National Park, where there were lots of buffalo. We drove through the night cross North Dakota because there were no rooms since many people had to be relocated due to flooding. We were able to catch a nice sunrise before we took a break from the ride. I visited my brother's family in Minneapolis before we headed north into Wisconsin on the way to the upper Michigan peninsula. From there, it was basically driving on until we got to Linda's mother's place in Oneonta, New York. We stayed there for a few days before driving straight to Tewksbury for the reunion. On the trip back we took a middle route down to Maryland and through West Virginia, then on to Kentucky and St Louis."

Meads' cross-country journey would motor through Kansas, Colorado and Utah, where he stopped on a whim long enough to take in the Flaming Gorge National Recreation Area.

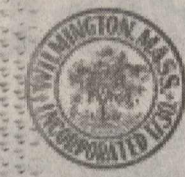

"It was very beautiful," he notes. "From there, we went through Wyoming to Idaho, where we stopped to visit the Craters of the Moon National Monument and then home. It was all pretty normal, other than we preferred to take roads other than the interstates whenever possible."

This all was part of Meads' well-layered life plan. He has never taken what would be

CUTLINE

This photo of Jon Meads was taken by a friend after a game that was played on a very muddy pitch. The field that day was basically a mud pit. Players tended to keep playing even they were injured, so their team wouldn't have to play shorthanded. Jon even finished one game with a cut over his eye, a bloody nose and a split lip. This is a classic photo of the 'Muddy Troll' Meads.

Class of 1961 was the favorite of the school's legendary math teacher and track coach Frank Kelley. There could have been an entire chapter in Kelley's life story devoted to this class and what he found so special about the boys and girls, most of whom grew up to be some of the best that academics has to offer. For Kelley, this group of students took his 'prove your answers' mantra like ducks to water and ran with it right to successful careers across the country.

Kelley always mentions Meads when it comes time to talk about the best-and-the-brightest that Wilmington High School had to offer. Meads admits that his classmates had some lofty goals, but says that they were not unique. Like everything else in Meads' discussion, he begs to differ when it comes to calling this class different than all the others. To Meads, what was unique about the Class of 1961 should be commonplace in most high schools. On that night in Tewksbury, the room was filled with special people, and even Meads had to admit that yes, there was something about that group that resonated not only with Mr. Kelley, but with the entire WHS administration down through the years.

"The Class of 1961 was unique just like every high school class," said Meads. "We seemed to have a good number of members who were college-orientated and would probably have had even more if we didn't grow up in the 50's, when the roles for women and men were strongly categorized as to what careers they should train for and what their futures should be.

"Probably the thing that most defined our class and what had a major impact on all of us was when Robert Saba was removed as one of our class advisors. Mr. Saba was known for organizing and promoting major school events such as the United Nations Day and was respected by most of the students. The general consensus was that he was removed due to faulty politics. When this happened, the class had an impromptu meeting during lunch in the cafeteria. Paul Lynch took the floor and gave a speech that prompted the class to organize a school-day boycott. It was decided that the entire class would skip school that day.

"It didn't take long for the administration to hear about this, and in short order the class officers (myself, George Szadis, Diane Imbimbo and Barbara Lynch) were asked to attend a meeting in the principal's office. This meeting was at the start of the 1961 school year, which meant that we were just starting to put the class yearbook together and to organize the senior prom. Mr. Kelley was appointed as our only class advisor and he helped us to focus on the yearbook. I was pretty much given carte blanche to organize the prom. This turned out to be relatively easy, since many groups in the class volunteered to take on the many responsibilities to make the prom happen. This incident and the strong follow-up actions by class members catalyzed us into being an integral group. We didn't have many divisions or clichés in our class. We've since had reunions every five years, and those same students have always stepped forward. Our class members attending these reunions tend to have a significantly higher turnout, with people returning from everywhere across the country.

"The most recent reunion saw a good number of us checking in to the hotel on Thursday in what turned into a three day event. Jack Cushing, one of our class members, organized the tour of the high school to see the changes that were made over the years before construction began on the new high school."

Wilmington High School's Class of 1961 is blessed to have graduates like Meads, who goes out of his way to stay in touch with his classmates, and they in turn reach out to him, following his travels and his life's journey. A part of that journey includes Meads' battle with cancer, which he handled with the same understated grace and the wonderful humility that marks the lives of many cancer survivors.

Long Life ahead

"There isn't much to tell," Meads says of his diagnosis of prostate cancer several years ago. "When my tests from my annual exam came back with a high PSA (the test that measures this particular cancer), I was referred to a specialist. That specialist turned out to be a former rugby player from England, so we always have a bit to talk about when we get together."

"They did a few more tests and confirmed the detection of my prostate cancer. It was in the early stages, and I was informed that I had two basic choices; remove it now or wait and see if it developed into something more serious- which wasn't likely to happen for a dozen or so more years. In thinking it over, what came to mind was that, given my inclination to do stupid things, it was unlikely that I would last another decade. On the other hand, several relatives on both sides of my family lived into their 100's, with an aunt who passed away earlier this year at the tender age of 110. I managed to luck out on several occasions when I was inches away from becoming a fatality. That made my decision fairly straightforward- get the prostatectomy and get on with living."

Plenty of inspiration

Meads' life is inspiring to others because he has never shied away from learning about life one interesting step at a time. His desire to keep learning along the way has made him an interesting partner both in the workplace and on the playing field. Meads is tough, smart and not afraid to ruffle a feather or two to make a point.

"You learn something from just about everyone. Probably the earliest lessons came from the neighborhood kids in the Roxbury housing development I lived in before moving to Wilmington. Having playmates from lower income families helped me to appreciate the value in each individual regardless of their status and origins.

"I credit Sister Mary Augustus, who was my third grade teacher in Boston, for giving me the desire to read and learn. I don't know much about her other than she taught our class the phonetic system of reading and encouraged us to read everything and not to worry whether a book was difficult or not. By the time I was in the sixth grade I was reading Shakespeare for my own enjoyment.

"Joe Boudreau and I were close friends until he died from brain cancer in 1997. Joe was a hard worker and about as honest as you can get. Having a reliable friend like Joe made me appreciate the value of friendships and the importance of being a good friend myself. Alan Ford was another friend who was an intellectual competitor, encouraging me to think outside the box. Then there was Paul Lynch, who was a popular guy who was involved in a car accident during our senior year at Wilmington. After the accident his cognitive abilities were seriously impaired, and that made him want to work harder at things. Paul showed me that despite the accident he could still be one of the school's leaders.

"Of course there was Mr. Kelley. I learned much more than math from Mr. Kelley. I was good at math and could easily do many of the algebra test problems in my head. Mr. Kelley's dictum was, 'if you do it in your head, be prepared to leave your head with the test paper.' It took a while, but that taught me that just having the right answer was not enough. You had to be able to explain how you came to your conclusions so that others could understand them. Probably the most important thing that I learned from Mr. Kelley was the need to be firm in doing what was right and fair- and that you could be human and warm at the same time.

"I particularly appreciated his coaching of the track team. He was a strong advocate of always doing your best and that if you did that, winning was not important- it was nice- but not important. This is an attitude that I've maintained throughout my rugby career, and I try to teach that to younger players. The way I put it is that it's better to play well and lose to a better team than it is to play poorly and win against a weaker team. The sport of rugby has been an inspiration. The traditional announcement by the referee to signal the end of a rugby game is a long whistle followed by the statement- 'NO SIDES'- indicating that we are all rugby players and the competition between the teams ends when the game is over. It's the reason why I came to love the game of rugby so much.

"A fine example of the rugby spirit occurred a few years back when the Langley Rugby Club came down to Portland for a game against us. They drove down late on Friday night for a game on Saturday. One of the Langley players was involved in a minor car accident when he got to Portland, but it was serious enough to put his vehicle out of commission. I was the only Portland player that he knew, so I got the call and took him back to my house for the rest of the night. During the game, one of the Langley players kicked the ball high and then came running downfield after it. He ran into me hard, hitting me right in the gut. It totally knocked the wind out of me, and as I was laying on the ground gasping for breath and hurting like hell, he got up and told me 'by the way, thanks for helping my brother out last night.' That was the pure rugby attitude.

"I guess my story wouldn't be complete without mentioning the number of stupid things that I've done over the years like bull riding and sky diving and streaking on my bike at well over 60 miles per hour. Some people would view all of this as very dangerous and distinctly unconventional. I guess that I'm sort of a free and different thinker with a strong social conscience. Regardless, I'm having a lot of fun overall and avoided jail, as well as tar and feathers."

Meads is saying this in a light-hearted fashion of course, but the man does nothing without applying a whole lot of heart and soul. Jon Meads- a man with a big heart and this inspiring story. Thanks for sharing it with me Jon. It was well-worth the listen.

Rams hoping to close out season on a strong note

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

Shawsheen Tech coach Al Costabile is a huge fan of Thanksgiving Day football. In years past, whether his Rams were in contention for a playoff spot or not, he always felt that Thanksgiving was a separate season in itself, getting your one chance to face your arch rivals, renewing a traditional grudge match that could only be settled on turkey day.

But this year is a little different. While Costabile still loves Thanksgiving football, even he has to admit that there is a little bit of a different feel to this season's turkey tilt with Greater Lowell, which will take place Thursday morning at 10:15 in Tyngsboro, as they have already defeated the Gryphons earlier this season by a score of 32-8 in Week 4 in Billerica.

"It is still a separate season in itself, believe me," Costabile said. "We are still looking forward to it, but it is a little different this year in that we have already played them. I can't help but think there are other teams in the state that feel the same way."

The difference this year is the newly implemented playoff system by the MIAA, whereby many Thanksgiving Day rivals are also playing each other during the season.

It is a playoff system that neither Shawsheen (4-6) or Greater Lowell (0-10) have participated in this season, and for the Rams that is quite a new thing, as it is the first time in the past four seasons that the Rams have not either played in the MIAA playoffs or the State Vocational Championship, having won the Super Bowl back in 2010.

"When you know you either have a playoff spot on the line or that you will be going to the playoffs after Thanksgiving, it can really help you keep your focus because you want to keep playing well headed into the post season," Costabile said. "We don't have that this year, but the kids have still been very focused and are excited for the game."

Part of the excitement for the Rams probably comes from having so many players who are experiencing the Thanksgiving Day rivalry for the first time, or at least playing a significant role in the game for the first time.

The Rams have been plagued by a rash of injuries this season, losing starting quarterback Chase Rebidue as well as number one running back Chris Arkalis to injuries during the course of the season. Arkalis ran for 262 yards and five touchdowns the first time these two teams met, but that was his final game of the season, as he suffered a torn ACL during the next week of practice.

Rebidue's last game of the season came the following week against Greater Lawrence when he suffered a broken collarbone after throwing two touchdowns earlier in the game.

But the Rams have had some players step up in their absence, with sophomore quarterback Alex Tate of Tewksbury having thrown for 451 yards and six touchdowns in just five games, while senior Jim Derochers has stepped in at running back and run for 407 yards and six touchdowns in the second half of the season.

While Greater Lowell is winless on the season and the Rams blew them out earlier in the year, Costabile is wary of overlooking a Gryphons team that seems to be playing better as the season winds down, including a 50-43 defeat to a Georgetown team last week, that had previously held the Rams to 14 points in beating them 21-14 a few weeks ago.

The Gryphons will also have plenty of motivation on their side as the Rams lead the series 16-4, and have won 12 years in a row on Thanksgiving including last season's 37-18 win in Billerica.

"Record wise it looks like they are struggling, but they just put up 43 points against Georgetown and we struggled against that team," Costabile said. "And I know it would make their season to beat us. This is their Super Bowl, so we have to approach it that way ourselves or we could be in for a long day."

If the Rams are going to avoid having a long day they must contain the Gryphons skill players, including wide receiver Winston Smith, who has caught six touchdowns passes this season, as well as running back Louis Medina, who has run for seven scores.

Quarterback Anthony Zeoli has thrown six touchdown passes this season, but Nick Rosetti has also played some quarterback for the Gryphons and Costabile says they are both threats.

"Rosetti is very elusive. He runs the ball very well. He is a threat to run or throw and he needs to be contained whenever he has the ball," Costabile said. "Zeoli is a big, strong kid who throws the ball well. He complements Rosetti very well."

While the Rams cannot qualify for the playoffs with a win in Thursday's game, and also cannot quite get to .500, they have won two in a row, and can improve to 5-6 on the season with a win.

"That is our goal right now, to win our last three games and finish strong," Costabile said. "It would be a great way to end the season winning three games in a row."

Wildcats looking to salvage tough season

By MIKE IPPOLITO
Sports Correspondent

Many things have not gone the way the Wilmington High Football team was hoping for this season, as the Wildcats, despite qualifying for the Division 3 Northeast playoffs, have struggled to a 3-7 overall record as they head into Thursday morning's 80th Annual Thanksgiving Day clash with rival Tewksbury at Doucette Field.

But Thanksgiving brings a new opportunity for this group of Wildcats, particularly the seniors, who will be looking to snap not only a three-game losing streak on the season, but also a three-game losing streak in the Thanksgiving Day rivalry that has also seen Tewksbury win five of the last six, including last season's 18-6 result at Alumni Field.

After qualifying for the post-season with a 3-4 record in their first seven games, including some very hard fought losses against Middlesex League powers Melrose (19-6) and Wakefield (17-3), the Wildcats have slipped as of late in dropping three in a row.

The post-season started off well enough for the Wildcats with a 34-7 first round loss against eventual sectional finalist Marblehead that was much closer than the final score would indicate. But the Wildcats have not played as well in their last two losses, to Danvers (32-7) and then a two-win Somerville team last week (30-19). But head coach Mike Barry knows that none of that matters come Thanksgiving morning.

"A win on Thanksgiving can make the season for us," Barry said. "I thought we played some pretty good teams tough early this year, but we have struggled a little bit lately. It's a matter of putting a complete game together on offense, defense and special teams if we want to win."

As has been the case for most of the season, Barry knows his team will be well prepared as they head into Thursday morning's tilt. While the results have not always been what was desired this season, the efforts and the attention to detail of his team have never been in question.

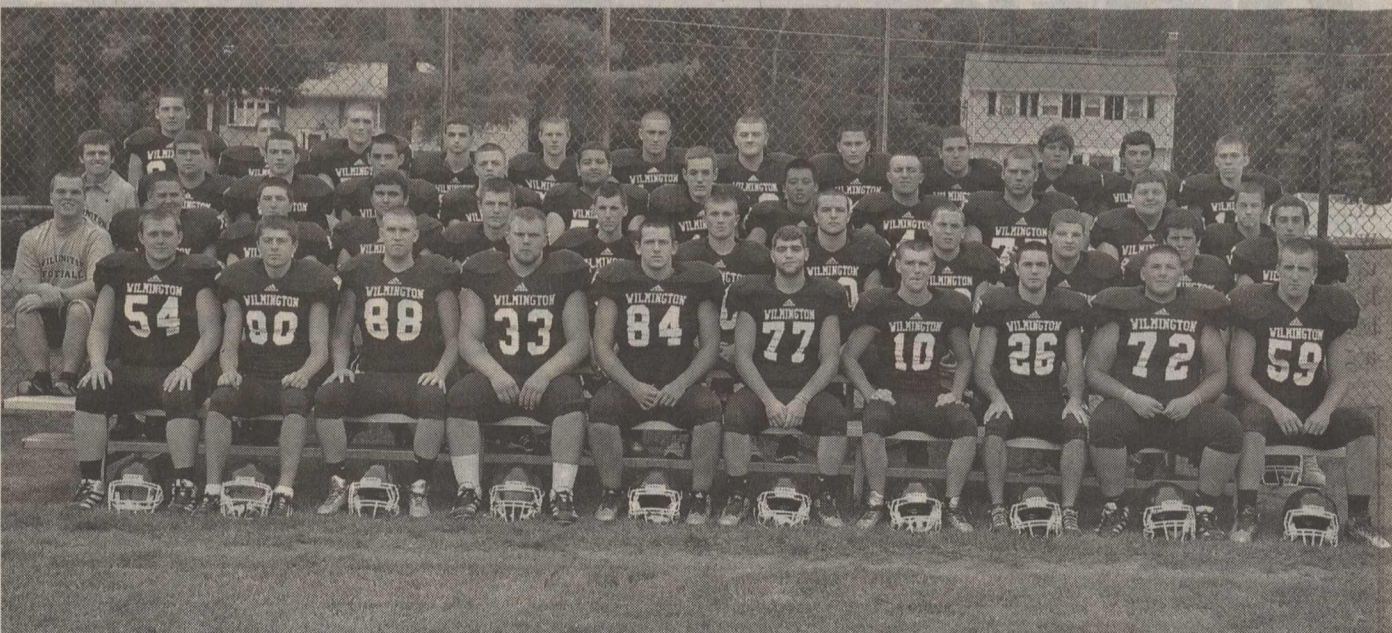

"We just started practicing and the practices have been good," Barry said last Thursday night. "But practices have been good all season long, and the kids have worked hard all season long. Now we just have to take what we do in practice and take it into the game."

If there was ever a game where the Wildcats want to carry their practice effort onto the playing field, it is this week against the Redmen. And Barry, now in his sixth season as head coach of the Wildcats after several seasons as an assistant, still believes in the magic of Thanksgiving morning and what it can mean to a team such as the Wildcats.

"It is a season in and of itself, and I am a firm believer that good things can happen on Thanksgiving," Barry said. "You see it all the time, a team with a 3-7 record goes in and beats a team with an 8-2 record or something. The thing we need to do is to get the kids to believe. You never know what can happen."

Of course Barry also knows that the Wildcats are not facing just a good 8-2 team on Thanksgiving morning. They will instead be taking on a Division 3 Super Bowl bound Tewksbury team that has rolled to an 11-0 record and is coming off a 32-14 rout of Melrose in the Division 3 state semi-final game last Saturday.

Barry knows that if his team is going to pull off the shocker, they are going to have to play their best game of the season. At the same time, he has confidence in his players that they can play with anyone if they are at their best.

"We know how good a football team they are, but at the same time you have to have the confidence in yourself that you can beat them," Barry said. "We realize that we cannot make mistakes against a team like this. We have to focus on each and every play, and we have to elevate that focus even more to pull this off."

Among the biggest challenges for Barry and the Wildcats will be stopping the multi-pronged rushing attack of the Redmen, led by junior running back James Sullivan who has run for 1,029 yards and 16 touchdowns this season, while also having score two more touchdowns on receptions.

Along with Sullivan, the Wildcats must also prepare for Tewksbury's other running backs including senior Eddie Matovu, who has run for 633 yards and five touchdowns as well as Tom Casey and James Hirtle, who have combined to score 11 additional touchdowns.

Senior quarterback Johnny Aylward has also proven to be quite the rushing threat for the Redmen, running for five TD's on the season, while also throwing for 1,275 yards and 16 touchdowns, ten of them to senior receiver Kevin Dick.

"As coaches we have to get into the kids heads that they have to do things the right way and that starts with being in the right position to do those things," Barry said. "You cannot forget the fundamentals like tackling which we have struggled with at some points this season. Those guys don't go down with just one tackler. We have to attack and run to the ball. The key for us is going to be gang tackling. The kids are going to have to really understand their jobs and play their butts off."

While the skill players for Tewksbury deservedly receive a lot of press for their outstanding play, Barry says they are just a part of the Redmen's success this season.

"Their offensive and defensive is the best I have seen in quite a while," Barry said. "Everybody wants to talk about their skill guys, and they should, but it's the guys on the line that are doing a great job, and making it all possible."

The Wildcats have not put up the impressive offensive numbers that the Redmen have, but when they are at their best they have also been able to do a fine job running the ball behind the efforts of running backs Ryan Carroccino (635 yards, 5 TD's), Matthew Penney (418 yards, 2 TD's), and as of late, Jomikeson Beray, along with their own dual threat quarterback, junior James O'Regan (562 rushing yards, eight rushing TD's).

"In the past we have had just one guy we have given the ball to, but this year it has been much more of a committee," Barry said. "All of the guys have done a really good for us, and we expect them all to play. We will go with whichever one has the hot hand."

With Tewksbury coming off an emotional win in the state semi-finals and awaiting a matchup with Plymouth South in the Division 3 Super Bowl at Gillette Stadium next weekend, one might think that the Wildcats might catch the Redmen overlooking them as they prepare for the state championship game. But Barry knows that will definitely not be the case.

"I can't speak for Tewksbury, but I know that (coach) Brian (Aylward) has been there for 20 years, and before that it was his father (Bob), and now his son (Johnny) is at quarterback, so it is a tradition for them and for the whole team," Barry said. "I know they will be well prepared. Their coaches do a great job and I know they will have them ready. We are preparing for them to be fully loaded and amped up to face us."

Redmen clearly the favorites in this one

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

They have won the last three meetings and five of the last six. And entering Thursday's 80th annual Thanksgiving Game match-up, Tewksbury will be the heavy odds-on favorite to make it four in a row. After all the Redmen team are trying to do something that no other Tewksbury team has done since 1985, that is finish the season perfect, while also trying to capture the team's first Super Bowl title since the 1996 season.

Standing in their way is a three-win Wilmington team. The Wildcats started off slow this season, before really coming on strong in the middle of the season, improving week-to-week and playing strong teams very tough until the very end. But over the last few weeks the team has really struggled, losing all three games in the new playoff format, while their opponents Tewksbury have won all three of its games and will be playing for the Division 3 State Championship nine days after this Turkey Game contest.

Tewksbury is the odds-on favorites not just because of the records, going to the Bowl and the fact that Wilmington is struggling, but for two other glaring reasons: its offensive running attack and its impressive run defense.

This season Tewksbury has outscored its opponents 385-170, averaging 35 points a game. The Redmen are also averaging 248 yards per game on the ground, while giving up just 79 per game.

All of that is said because Wilmington is primarily a running team.

"Yeah we know they are a good running team, but they can also throw the ball," said Redmen coach Brian Aylward, who is 9-7 in this series as a head coach. "And they do a good job of protecting (quarterback James O'Regan when he throws) so we have our work cut out for us."

On the flip side of Tewksbury's impressive numbers in terms of running the ball and stopping the run, the team has been susceptible at times to the passing game. The Redmen have given up nearly twice as much yards in the air than to the ground with 1,648 (a lot of those coming in late blow out games) yards.

The Wildcats could make things interesting if the team can execute in the air -- especially on shorter routes, staying away from deep throws towards James Sullivan and Kevin Dick, who have the majority of the team's 13 interceptions.

"We have watched Wilmington on film and we have also seen them live a few times and I think they are much better than their record indicates," said Aylward. "I'm very impressed with what I have seen with up them upfront (on the offensive line). Their quarterback is a very good athlete and player.

"I think up front they are as physical as all of the other teams they have faced from the Middlesex league. We're going to need to get after it because Wilmington's going to be there to punch us in the mouths and drive the ball. We're going to have to be ready."

Tewksbury's offense is led by quarterback Johnny Aylward (73-for-127, 1,275 yards, 16 TDs, 2 INTs) as well as a strong core of dynamic running backs including junior Sullivan (1,029 yards, 16 TDs), Eddie Matovu (633, 5 TDs), Tom Casey (532, 6 TDs), James Hirtle (210, 5 TDs) and Aylward (184, 5 TDs). Senior wide out Kevin Dick has caught 36 passes for 688 yards with 10 scores, while Sullivan, Matovu and tight end Johnny Saunders are also pass targets for Johnny Aylward.

The offensive line consists of Johnny DeVito at center, tackles Alex Hamilton and Matt Lacascia and guards Danny Donovan and John Meloni.

Wilmington is led by quarterback O'Regan, who has completed 46-of-110 attempts for 568 yards with two touchdowns but has thrown eight interceptions. But he's a big threat to run the ball with 562 yards and eight touchdowns, while Ryan Carroccino has rushed for over 600 yards with five touchdowns and Matt Penney and Jomiekson Beray have over 600 yards combined and two scores.

Defensively, Tewksbury's line is basically the same as the offensive group, with ends Matovu and Ethan Eloi, who has been tremendous the last few games, while Saunders, Brandon Hibner as well as secondary guys Sullivan, Dick, Ryan Bednarek and Dominic Rosado are also vital in the team's success of stopping teams.

O'Regan's top targets to throw to include Ryan Colangelo, Kody Dunnett and Carroccino.

Leading up to this game, the talk will be whether or not Tewksbury falls in a 'trap game' and if Wilmington can come back strong and put it all together for 40 minutes in its final game of the season?

"No, obviously we can't (overlook Wilmington)," said Aylward. "That would be the wrong thing to do. Year by year for 80 years, Wilmington has been our rivals and one year, this year Plymouth South (our Super Bowl opponent) will be our rivals. It's as simple as that."

"This game is no different from any of the other years. We're expecting them to come out and fight to win like they do very year. This game is as important to their team, their school and town as it is to us. They're going to give it all they have and it's going to be an emotional game. There's great pride on both sides and I expect another good one."

Alex looking to put hammer down

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Dan Marino and Barry Sanders don't have any. Neither does Bruce Matthews, who is considered one of the best in his position. But Tewksbury's Alex Hamilton, a three-sport athlete at Tewksbury Memorial High School, already has one but not in the sport that Marino, Sanders and Matthews played.

The it, is a championship ring. Hamilton (known as Hammer) has one as part of the 2011 Division 2 Tewksbury State Championship Hockey team, and he would like nothing better than to win his first football championship ring when the Redmen take on Plymouth South in the Division 3 Super Bowl come December 7th.

But before Hamilton or any of the Redmen players can get ahead of themselves, the team has its first Super Bowl game this Thursday morning when the Wilmington Wildcats come to town. A win in this game, the last home game for the Hamilton, would be like getting the engagement ring.

"Every kid that plays football in Tewksbury dreams about this game," said Hamilton one of the four captains on this year's team. "About this Wilmington-Tewksbury Thanksgiving Game during your senior year. It's so meaningful to both towns. It's 80 years of history. I know I can't wait and I think it's going to be an awesome game. Coach already said we're going full steam ahead, playing our guys and not resting them."

We're going to expect (Wilmington) to come out as hard so we have to be ready to play."

Hamilton is a monster on the field. He stands at 6-feet 1 inch and around 240 pounds. He's been that way since he was a freshman. He's a three-sport varsity athlete. Besides being a two-way lineman, he's a forward on the ice hockey team and a DH/first baseman, slugger on the baseball team.

He's been through it all - the lumps of losing, the celebrations of winning, all the while playing very hard for three very good, yet very different coaches. The one here in football, says the captain bring a lot of different variables to the table.

"Alex is one of the better linemen in the entire (Merrimack Valley) Conference," said Aylward. "But what sets him apart from others is he can run. Not too many kids his size can run."

Hamilton said that he came into TMHS as a freshman heavier than he wanted to be and that he was able to shed some pounds and add extra muscle on to replace that. He beefed up to 240, all the while dropping his 40-yard dash time down to 5.13 seconds.

"My freshman year I had too much fat on me," he said with a laugh. "So I trained and trimmed down. I think that has helped me with my speed. I started playing football in eighth grade and I was a guard then but after I improved my speed, (Assistant) Coach (Paul) Norton switched me to tackle and I've been there ever since."

Hamilton has drastically improved in all three of his sports, but football is clearly his best sport.

"He's tough, he's focused and he's a gamer," said Aylward. "He has a real good ability of being able to crank it up and switch to a high intensity level during games and then being able to turn that switch off when games are over. That's rare as a lot of kids can't do that. If you ever spend time with him, you wouldn't know that he has that intensity and just has a good sense of urgency."

Hamilton plans on having that urgency for his final two games of his football career. He knows winning those games will be a challenge, despite Tewksbury's 11-0 record thus far.

"Wilmington's quarterback (James O'Regan) is their biggest threat," he said. "And I know Ryan Carroccino is a real good running back. Besides that I don't know too much about them except they are tough and Carroccino is a tough kid. I've known him since we were both seven years old going to the Redmen Camp."

Hamilton is the youngest of three children, his brother Andrew is 31 and is a lawyer and his sister Meghan played hoops at Shawsheen Tech and is now enrolled at UMass-Lowell. His father Matt grew up in Melrose and played hockey along side Melrose Head Football Coach Tim Morris who went out of his way after Saturday's game to congratulate Alex on his performance.

"I knew a couple of kids on (the Melrose team) but not a lot," he said. "But a lot of my family comes from there."

And you can expect a lot of his family members to be on hand to watch his final two games, starting this Thursday.

"I have two more games left, and I can't believe it'll be all over after that," he said. "I just all of us to make the best of it and hopefully we can beat Wilmington, then get the ring at Gillette."

Senior lineman Johnny DeVito

Lack of physical size not the center of his attention

By JAMIE POTE
Sports Editor

Everytime he goes in his stance for a play on the line, his opponents tower over him, literally. But that never has stopped Johnny DeVito. In fact the kid embraces that challenge - his vertical one too.

DeVito laughs when asked about his height and weight, maybe 5-foot-7 on a lucky day and maybe 165 pounds during the football season he says. Imagine that, a 5-foot-7, 165-pound offensive lineman? Lineman, say what? Yes, how about center?

Last year he went up against a Lowell kid who was 6-foot-6, 305 pounds. Other games it's not as significant as that where he is outweighed by almost 150 pounds, but it's pretty drastic. If you have seen him every game over the last two seasons, you realize the extremely tough challenges he has every play on every game.

But he said over and over he doesn't think about it.

"I don't think about it," he said. "It's just going up against any other player."

But being 5-7, 165 pounds and going up against kids who are 6-0, 220 can't be fun.

Or can it?

"It's not easy but I go about it," he said. "It's not anything different for me. I just treat it how it is - I've always played center and it just comes natural.

"The biggest (guys) aren't usually the best players. There was a kid from Central Catholic last year and he was by far the best kid I've ever gone up against. He was maybe 200 pounds and he was fast and it's the fast kids who are the real challenging ones."

Head Coach Brian Aylward said that players like DeVito don't come around too often - players with that kind of courage to week in, week out be overmatched on paper, but come out victorious when the battle in the trenches is over.

"I'm so proud of Johnny, especially for doing what he's done," said Aylward. "He's an example for all kids that it doesn't matter how big or how tough you are, that it comes down to how bad you want it. If you do the work, you'll be successful and that's been the case for Johnny.

"He's a very important part to what we have done offensively the last two years and (On Saturday) we really needed him to get after their backside back and I thought he had a great game (against Melrose)."

Being the smallest guy in the huddle, more like 'Lucas' seems to have brought out the best in DeVito in so many ways.

"His lack of size doesn't matter and he's just as much a part of that offensive line's leadership.

Johnny's the one who makes the calls with the line. We all appreciate what he does - we have seen so many defensive fronts over the last two years, he's the one making the calls and that's not easy.

"The kids on the team really respect his toughness and how can you not? He's been a great kid to coach, he's been a very respectful kid and just such a pleasure to coach."

And now Aylward will only have two more games to coach the little guy, starting with the his final home game this Thursday against Wilmington.

"It's a special day for everyone," said DeVito. "There's such a big crowd and everyone who ever played for Tewksbury is there and it's been 80 years (that the two teams have played each other) so it's a pretty special thing."

DeVito and the rest of the Redmen come into Thursday's game with a perfect 11-0 record. Wilmington doesn't have nearly a quarter of those wins with three, yet DeVito again says the larger number of wins for his squad means absolutely nothing.

"Their record doesn't reflect how they play because I think they are tough team," he said. "They had the lead at half-time against Melrose. They are tough and we have to play them tough and we have to play it as if it's any other game."

In order for Tewksbury to keep the unbeaten streak going, the team's high powered offensive attack must execute. The team's running game is pretty dynamic led by James Sullivan, Eddie Matovu and Tom Casey, but it's the offensive line that deserves so much credit.

"The (running backs) obviously contribute a ton to that and I can't say enough about those guys," said DeVito. "But I think all of us on the line are just solid players. We have a guy like John Melloni coming in out of nowhere and he's played great, and Alex (Hamilton), Matt (Lacascia) and Dan (Donovan) they all know the tricks of the trade and are just all solid players."

And so is the little guy in the middle, No. 55, who does one heckuva job each and every week despite being totally overmatched everytime out.

Movie Reviews
"The Hunger Games: Catching Fire"

by Paul Feely

"THE HUNGER GAMES: CATCHING FIRE" again stars Jennifer Lawrence as heroic Katniss Everdeen in the 2nd installment of Suzanne Collins' dystopian trilogy. It's even darker and more dramatic than the first.

"THE HUNGER GAMES: CATCHING FIRE"
GRADE: ***

Jennifer Lawrence returns as heroic Katniss Everdeen in the second installment of Suzanne Collins' dystopian trilogy - one that resonates even darker and more dramatic than the first.

After winning the 74th Annual Hunger Games, Katniss and Peeta Mellark (Josh Hutcherson) leave family and friends for a "Victor's Tour" of the oppressed, underprivileged districts. But first Katniss must face District 12 suitor Gale (Liam Hemsworth) now that she's supposed to be romantically involved with Peeta.

It's a fictional liaison fostered in the Capitol by ruthlessly diabolical President Snow (Donald Sutherland), who - along with wily gamelaker Plutarch Heavensbee (Philip Seymour Hoffman) - is planning the next survival-of-the-fittest TV reality show, The Quarter Quell, which will bring together former Victors in gladiator competition, as the seeds of subversion and rebellion are sprouting throughout Panem.

"Last year was child's play," warns Katniss' manipulative mentor, Haymitch (Woody Harrelson).

Adapted by Simon Beaufoy and Michael deBruyn, it's adroitly directed by Francis Lawrence (no relation to Jennifer), who adheres to the central themes of loyalty, trust and betrayal, while developing complex emotional relationships and maintaining the resonant political undercurrent and exploitive tension of the suspenseful jungle Games, which involve a rotating rock island, rabid monkeys, attack birds, blood rain and a rolling fog of poison gas. An Oscar-winner for "Silver Linings Playbook," Jennifer Lawrence once again embodies fiery, ferocious, fatalistic Katniss, the outspoken, revolutionary warrior whose weapon of choice is the bow and arrow. There's also great support from Elizabeth Banks as PR-maven Effie Trinket, Lenny Kravitz as designer Cinna and Stanley Tucci as TV host Caesar Flickerman, along with newcomers Sam Claflin, Jeffrey Wright, Amanda Plummer and Jena Malone. And great credit goes to Capitol Couture's Trish Summerville for inventive, elaborate costumes.

The final book "Mockingjay" will be divided into two parts, the first scheduled for release next November.

Historical Society hosts Country Store Dec. 7th

On, Saturday, December 7th, in the 1714 Meeting House, the Lynnfield Historical Society is presenting its 51st annual holiday Country Store. This year's Country Store will feature the traditional favorites as well as some new attractions and extended hours.

The Store will open at 9:00 a.m. On sale will be traditional holiday greens in the form of wreaths and swags; boxwood trees; Vermont cheddar cheese; ham, beans and brown bread dinner to go; a variety of home-made baked goods; penny candy; freshly popped popcorn; and home-made jams. The kitchen will also be open selling and serving coffee, cider, donuts, hot dogs and sandwiches.

Featured again this year is Santa's North Pole Fishing Hole sponsored by Colby Properties. New this year is "Santa's 5 & 10" where the kids can do their holiday shopping!

At 10:45 a.m., Santa will arrive via fire truck and will be available upstairs in the Meeting House for photos with children. There will again be a professional photographer on hand taking pictures for a small donation to the Historical Society.

The Meeting House will stay open this year up to and during the tree lighting ceremony.

Varied events from carols to Whitey Bulger Tewksbury Library Christmas celebration

The Tewksbury Public Library celebrates Christmas this December with five special events, plus three events celebrating the downfall of James "Whitey" Bulger entitled "A Whitey Christmas."

On Monday, December 2 at 10:30 am, WPI professor and former Dickens Society president Joel Brattin will discuss the story behind America's favorite Christmas story, A Christmas Carol.

On Friday, December 6 at 7:30 pm, the Merrimack Valley Chorus will offer a free Christmas Concert as part of the library's Festival of Trees Opening Night.

Arrive early and view more than 30 Christmas trees decorated by community organizations, local businesses, and Tewksbury families, displayed throughout the library. Trees will be up until January 3. Opening Night, which begins at 6pm, will also consist of activities for children, including a family Christmas Concert with Steve Blunt at 6:30pm.

On Monday, December 9 at 10:30 am, UMass Boston professor Christopher Harding will explore the traditions of Christmas around the world and throughout history.

On Saturday, December 14 at 2pm, origami masters Michael LaFosse and Richard Alexander, founders of Origamido Studio in Haverhill, will teach dollar bill origami just in time for the holidays.

On Monday, December 16 at 10:30 am, Kenneth Turino of Historic New England will trace the history of Christmas in New England.

A "WHITEY CHRISTMAS" FOCUSES ON WHITEY BULGER

The Tewksbury Public Library celebrates the downfall of Boston mobster Whitey Bulger this December. It's going to be a "Whitey Christmas" at the library!

On Tuesday, December 3 at 7pm, Boston University professor and former Boston Globe journalist Dick Lehr will discuss the rise of Whitey Bulger. Lehr is the author of Whitey: The Life of America's Most Notorious Mob Boss and Black Mass: Whitey Bulger, the FBI, and a Devil's Deal.

On Tuesday, December 10 at 7:30pm, radio talk show host and Boston Herald columnist Howie Carr will discuss the fall of Whitey Bulger. Carr is the author of Ratman: The Trial and Conviction of Whitey Bulger and The Brothers Bulger: How They Terrorized and Corrupted Boston for a Quarter Century.

On Tuesday, December 17 at 7pm, WCVB journalist Bob Halloran will discuss the struggle of the family of Debbie Davis, alleged victim of Whitey Bulger. Halloran will be joined by Debbie's brother, Steven. Halloran is the author of Impact Statement: A Family's Fight For Justice Against Whitey Bulger, Stephen Flemmi and the FBI. Book selling and signing after each talk for those interested.

All library events are free and open to all, including non-residents. Events are sponsored by the Friends of the Tewksbury Public Library. Registration for events is required due to limited seating. Call 978-640-4490 x 205 or visit www.tewksburypl.org to register. The Tewksbury Public Library is located at 300 Chandler Street.

About the Towns

TURKEY, FOOTBALL, PIE, AND FAMILY

Please check your local "Daily Times Chronicle" for daily updates.

AND SO IT BEGINS (WILMINGTON)

Enjoy that turkey and football and pie and family because, right around the corner: Santa's Workshop will be held in Wilmington on Thursday, December 5, from 6 - 7:30 p.m. at the Town Hall.

"Santa," notes Wilmington Recreation, "has reserved some time to visit with Wilmington children. Bring your camera to capture this special moment!"

The workshop will be followed by, on Saturday, December 7, Breakfast with Santa, between either 8:15 - 10 a.m. or 10:15 a.m. - 12 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall; $7 each for ages 1 and up.

"Enjoy a hot, served, plated breakfast (with a set menu). Santa will be available to receive wish lists and pose for a quick snapshot. Pre-purchased tickets are required."

Tickets are on sale at the Recreation Department.

TWO PARTS, ONE NIGHT (WINCHESTER, CONT'D)

"...Town Meeting also approved motions from the Personnel Board to approve revisions to custodial union salaries and wages for FY14 through FY16," notes the Winchester edition of the "Daily Times Chronicle."

"This is the only union contract to be settled prior to the meeting."

"It was noted that a two percent raise is above the 1.5 percent cap recommended by the Finance Committee. Howard said they tried to negotiate something which is fair and which the town can afford. He said he believed they could make the increase work across the entire work force."

"In other financial business, Town Meeting voted a transfer of $83,564 from Free Cash to fund the FY13 Recreation Enterprise Fund deficit. The deficit was attributed primarily to lower enrollment in programs. Registration in FY2012 totaled 10,085 while the figure dropped to 9,080 in FY13.

"Town Meeting approved the appropriation of $50,000 from the Parking Meter Fund for the installation and maintenance of parking meters, maintenance of the parking lots, and other costs associated with the collection and enforcement of parking ticket revenues at the Wedgemere and Aberjona parking lots."

"As part of a comprehensive overhaul of parking policies and practices in and around the downtown, the town has entered into a trial agreement with the state Department of Conservation and Recreation, which owns most of the land, to apply daily parking fees at the Wedgemere Train Station...."

POSITIVE CLIMATE CHANGES (LYNNFIELD)

Always on the menu, Thanksgiving or not, for all ages, everywhere, awareness of positive social interaction, as seen through the Lynnfield Middle School's implementation of bullying prevention and intervention.

The plan includes reaching out in several arenas: the staff, 'hot spots,' community partnership, the Anti-Defamation League, the Essex County District Attorney, Lynnfield Police Department, school-based initiatives, team and grade level meetings, posters and awareness activities, Wellness Week, Pioneer mentors, recess monitors, and a host of other activities and resources.

"About the Towns" covers recent events in the 10-town Middlesex East area. Because Middlesex East deadlines are early, please check the front sections of this paper or look on line for up-to-date information about your city or town.

We also welcome original material - please send it to Phyllis Nissen, "About the Towns," Middlesex East Supplement, Box 240, Reading, MA 01867 or to schooltowns@comcast.net.

Like a vintage holiday painting come to life, each December living history museum Old Sturbridge Village transforms itself into an enchanted 19th-century village for its memorable Christmas by Candlelight celebrations, complete with horse-drawn sleigh rides, carolers in costume, Christmas trees, yule logs, gingerbread houses, mistletoe, and sugar plums.

As visitors stroll through the candlelit Village, they can meet Father Christmas and Santa Claus, join in a Christmas Carol sing-a-long, hear holiday music and much more.

In order to focus on the evening holiday events, OSV will be closed during the day from December 2 - 25. The Village will be open for Christmas by Candlelight on Friday, Saturday, and Sunday evenings from 4 - 9 p.m. Dec. 6-8, 13-15 and 20-22

PARKER TAVERN HOLIDAY OPEN HOUSE DECEMBER 8

The Reading Antiquarian Society - Friends of Parker Tavern would like to invite all to the Parker Tavern, 103 Washington Street in Reading on Sunday, December 8 from 2 - 4 p.m. for an annual Holiday Open House.

The Reading Garden Club will decorate the house with beautiful traditional floral displays. Amy Colby will be strolling through the tavern serenading with her fiddle and Girl Scouts will sing carols. Refreshments will be served. Free. For more information call 781-944-7240.

MIDDLESEX EAST SPORTS WEEKLY TRIVIA:

What U.S. president gave the final speech of his political career at Fenway Park?

Answer appears elsewhere in this column.

•Freshman Torri Plank (Sandown, NH) finished 258th overall to lead the Wheelock College cross country team this afternoon at the NCAA New England Regional Championships, hosted by University of Southern Maine at the Narragansett School course in Gorham, ME.

Senior Kaileigh Kenny of Williams College won the six kilometer women's race with a time of 21:02.18. Rivier University won the team title with 44 points.

The Wildcats scored 1628 points to place 52nd for the women.

Plank clocked in at 26:17.24 in her first appearance at the regional championship meet. Freshman Danielle Spivack (Abington, MA) was the second-best finisher for Wheelock, placing 346th overall with a mark of 29:55.76, while senior Danielle Gaudette (Nashua, NH) turned in a time of 30:08.33 to place 349th.

Sophomore Stephanie Horn (Arlington, MA) was a step behind Gaudette with a time of 30:09.56. Junior Eva Roberts (Milton, MA) ran the course in 33:25.92 to finish 367th overall.

Senior Michael LeDuc won the men's race for Connecticut College with a time of 24:21.0 in the eight kilometer meet. Williams won the team title by a point over Middlebury College with 77 points.

Sophomore Alexander Kriz (Northborough, MA) recorded a time of 34:36.24 as Wheelock's top finisher for the men's team, placing 353rd overall. Junior Dan Blahnik (Saint Louis, MO) crossed the finish with a mark of 42:28.48 to place 364th, while SENIOR PATRICK HOLLAND (READING, MA) completed the final race of his career with a time of 45:53.68 to finish 366th.

•ST. MARY'S OF LYNN SHOOTING GUARD JENNIE MUCCIARONE (NORTH READING) has verbally committed to Tufts University, the school announced. The following is a release from the school.

If NORTH READING'S JENNIE MUCCIARONE'S college decision works out as well as high school, she will be a very happy Jumbo.

"As an eighth-grader, I never would have expected to come here. Now I can't picture high school anyplace else," Mucciarone, a St. Mary's senior who made a verbal commitment to play basketball at Tufts University.

Mucciarone joins teammates Brianna Rudolph (UMass Lowell) and Sharell Sanders (Caldwell College) as verbal commits, giving St. Mary's a college Div. 1, 2 and 3 player on its roster.

"I was looking at NESCAC schools because they have a reputation for being great academically and athletically," she said, adding that she made her decision after spending a night at Tufts.

"I made a few visits and did my first overnight at Tufts," said Mucciarone, an outstanding student who is ranked No. 6 in her class. "I just got the feeling that is where I belong. I loved the team. I could see myself at the school, not just for basketball."

Mucciarone is a 5-7 shooting guard who has averaged 16 points a game the last two seasons. At that pace, she will become the program's third 1,000-point scorer, joining Robyn Mazin and Tori Faieta. She has started all 76 games since arriving at St. Mary's, helping the Spartans win a state championship her freshman year. St. Mary's is 58-18 with her in the lineup.

"We had a great team coming back when Jennie was a freshman, but she came in and gave us the outside threat we needed," said St. Mary's Coach and Athletic Director Jeff Newhall, who said Mucciarone's basketball IQ helps set her apart.

"Not only is she one of the most talented players, but she knows the game as well or better than anyone on the floor. She has the ability of knowing how to get open and what to do when she gets the ball."

"Coming to St. Mary's was great decision in all aspects," she said. "It's been an unbelievable experience with the people I've met and the opportunities I've received. St. Mary's challenged me. I really grew up. The family atmosphere among students, teachers, players and coaches is unreal."

Newhall said he is not surprised to see Mucciarone land at a school the caliber of Tufts. "I always thought she was an Ivy League and NESCAC type of student and she had interest from schools in both leagues," he said. "Tufts is academically one of the best schools in the country and one of the top 10 basketball programs in the country. She made a great choice."

•Kevin Goumas (Long Beach, N.Y.) and Nick Sorkin (Rockville, Md.) both recorded a goal and an assist to lead the University of New Hampshire men's ice hockey team to a 4-2 non-conference victory against Brown University at the Whittemore Center.

Grayson Downing (Abbottsford, British Columbia) and Jeff Silengo (Madison, Conn.) scored the other goals for UNH, which had 10 skaters record

"Dallas is my hometown, and to be invited to perform on behalf of The Salvation Army is such a great honor," reflected Selena Gomez, capturing the nationwide spirit of the giving program. "Giving back is so important and I am looking forward to kicking off the iconic Red Kettle Campaign and getting those bells ringing across the nation to help families and children in need."

The Red Kettle Campaign runs from Thanksgiving Day through Christmas Eve and is the largest and longest-running fundraiser of its kind. The campaign raised $148.7 million last year alone, with more than $1.75 billion raised since the Dallas Cowboys Thanksgiving Day partnership began in 1997. With the Thanksgiving holiday falling later in the month than usual, this year's Red Kettle Campaign is more critical than ever.

"Though the Red Kettle campaign is five days shorter this year due to a later Thanksgiving, the local Salvation Army people are confident that the attention at least one point. JEFF WYER (READING, MASS.) recorded 10 of his 24 saves in the third period. Brown goalie Marco Del Filippo stopped 37 shots overall, including 13 in the first period and 15 in the second.

New Hampshire took a 2-1 lead and 15-8 shot advantage into the second period.

Midway through the third period, a quick Brown attack in transition produced a chance for Mark Naclerio in the slot, but Wyer made the leg pad save and a teammate cleared the rebound from the low slot. Moments later, Dave Middleton's shot from the slot sailed through traffic and handcuffed Wyer, who then batted the loose puck from the crease.

Brown pulled Del Filippo for an extra skater with 1:22 remaining in regulation but Wyer and the Cats held the Bears at bay the rest of the way to preserve the victory.

•ANSWER TO THIS WEEK'S TRIVIA QUESTION: c) Franklin Delano Roosevelt

that partners like Selena Gomez and the Dallas Cowboys are bringing to the cause will more than make up that difference," said Major Ron Busroe, national community relations and development secretary for The Salvation Army. "We strive to help America's most vulnerable - children, and ensure that they have a warm, comfortable place to sleep and hot food to eat and toys to play with at Christmas."

Locally, the M.E. effort is coordinated through Michael Skoog, the Central Mass. Field Representative, Service Extension Dept. that is based in Canton, as well as members of their Boston office over the years. Skoog visits the Daily Times Chronicle regularly in December for updates.

Selena Gomez is the newest addition to a list of Red Kettle Kick-Off celebrity halftime performers including Kenny Chesney, Enrique Iglesias, Keith Urban, Daughtry, the Jonas Brothers, Kelly Clarkson, Carrie Underwood, Sheryl Crow, Destiny's Child, Toby Keith, LeAnn Rimes, Creed, Jessica Simpson, Billy Gilman, Clint Black, Randy Travis and Reba McEntire.

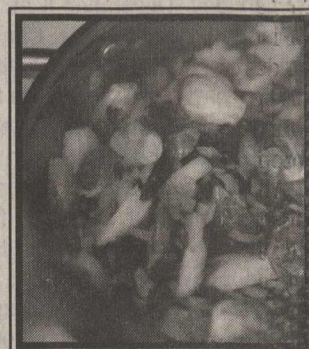

From its humble beginnings as a Salvation Army captain's startup program in 1891 in San Francisco, the Red Kettle Campaign has grown into one of the most recognizable and important charitable campaigns in the United States.

It provides toys for kids, coats for the homeless, food for the hungry and countless social service programs year-round. As part of the campaign, more than 25,000 Salvation Army volunteers throughout the country ring bells and solicit donations to the red kettles.

Brussels Sprouts Cranberry and Bacon

The poor Brussels sprout, as a much-maligned member of the cabbage family, tends to conjure up visions of that mushy, bitter-tasting, greenish-brown ball our mothers made us eat. Though the Brussels sprout is "bitter" about its past, it is trying to redeem it's reputation ... by becoming a more sophisticated, better dressed, member of the side dish family.

But why are Brussels Sprouts usually so bitter? Our Mystery Chef (and Brussels sprout miracle worker) went into the test kitchen to find out, and shows us how easy it is to reform this amazing vegetable into a great side dish. She soothes and coaxes the best flavor from the sprouts, by sautéing rather than boiling, adding sweeteners, and not overcooking them - since overcooking produces that strong taste and odor that can make them so bitter.

Why should we even bother with this difficult vegetable? Brussels sprouts are a great source of vitamins A, C, and K. They contain iron, fiber, potassium, and B vitamins, too. In addition, these sprouts also contain folate, protein, and the antioxidant beta-carotene. Also, current varieties have an improved taste, as some are almost sweet. Thomas Jefferson (he was a genius, remember) planted Brussels sprouts in his garden in the early 1800s, bringing the plant to Virginia from Paris.

INSTRUCTIONS
1. Halve or quarter the Brussels sprouts with a knife, making bite sized pieces. Cut the bacon in small cubes and dice the onion.

2. In a large skillet or pan, pour the grape seed oil. This oil is both healthy and does not overpower in taste, like olive oil can.

3. Add the bacon and onion and slightly brown.

4. Add the spices and Brussels sprouts, slightly brown. Then add the honey and maple syrup, and then cover. Cook under the cover for 10-15 mins, or until fork tender and still bright green. The browner they get, the softer ( and stronger ) they will be.

5. Serve as a side dish or lunch dish and enjoy. You can add more maple or honey after cooling and sprinkle with more dried cranberries.

Ingredients

- 10 Brussels sprouts
- 2 slices of maple syrup
- uncured bacon
- ¾ cup dried cranberries
- 1 small onion (or 2 shallots)
- 1 Tablespoon honey
- 1 Tablespoon maple syrup
- ¼ teaspoon of ground coriander
- ¼ teaspoon salt
- 2 Tablespoons of grape seed oil

Locals participate in First Congregational Church production 2013 Christmas Cantata "The Light of Christmas: Share the Song"

The First Congregational Church in Stoneham's choir along with guest instrumentalists and vocalists will present its annual Christmas Cantata, The Light of Christmas: Share the Song, on Sunday, December 8, 2013 at 7:00 p.m. at the Church on Church Street next to the Common in Stoneham, MA.

All are welcome to come rejoice in the true meaning of Christmas through this inspiring cantata which tells the story of the coming Light, the coming of Christ, the coming of Jesus. The admission is free and refreshments will be served. A freewill offering is appreciated.

Directed by Joyce Simpson of Revere and narrated by Jeremy Little of Wakefield, this musical experience attracts singers and instrumentalists from Stoneham and many other communities and towns in Massachusetts and New Hampshire. In addition, Lorna Davidson-Connelly will be the signer for the hearing impaired for the evening.

A children's section features:

From Reading: Hannah Korwan, Meredith Korwan, TJ Korwan

From Stoneham: Autumn Bardell, Bryce Bardell, Aurelia Crosslin, Avari Manni
From Wakefield: Rachel Chanley, Amanda Lee, Spencer Little, Hudson Little, Elise Theriault

About the First Congregational Church in Stoneham

The First Congregational Church of Stoneham was chartered in 1725. At that time, the town and the church were one entity, leading the political, social and religious life of its 300 citizens. Today, the Church continues its active role in the Stoneham community and surrounding towns serving countless families through all life events. The Church also offers a well-regarded nursery school for pre-school children and a host of other services for individuals and families in need, including the Stoneham/Board of Health Food Pantry and weekly community dinners through an interfaith program.

For more information, call: 781-438-0097.

Protecting skin as it ages

Just as the body changes with age, so do the needs of the skin. While acne and breakouts may have been the bane of existence as an adolescent, wrinkles and dark spots are concerns as we age.

The U.S. National Library of Medicine says that skin changes are one of the most noticeable signs of aging. Sagging skin and wrinkles are two of the more common problems men and women encounter as they age.

As people get older, connective tissues in the skin that promote strength and elasticity have a tendency of breaking down. Furthermore, the blood vessels of the dermis become more fragile, which can lead to bruising. Also, sebaceous glands may produce less oil, making the skin less able to moisturize itself. As a result, the skin thins out.

It is important to note these changes so that people can be proactive in their approach to skincare as they age. There are certain strategies to put in place that can make the difference in the appearance and health of the skin. While none of these are the magic "fountain of youth," they go a long way to promoting a more youthful appearance.

* Address dryness. If the skin is itchy or uncomfortable, or if you find that there is extra flaking, lack of moisture could be a problem. Moisturizer should be the staple of a skincare regimen. Experiment with moisturizers until you find the one that is the best match for your skin.

* Use sun protection. The sun is one of the single biggest contributors to unhealthy skin and premature signs of aging.

Always wear sun protection products when going out in the sun, even on overcast days.

* Don't tug or be rough on the skin. The skin becomes more delicate and prone to injury as a person ages. Therefore, unnecessary roughness while washing and drying can break capillaries or mar the skin in other ways. Be delicate, using cotton to wipe away makeup and avoid cleansers that have rough exfoliators or other substances that can be rough on the skin.

* Revise makeup shades and products as needed. As skincare needs change, it pays to go with the flow in terms of the products you use and buy. What may have been flattering a few years ago may not be flattering now. Think about neutral or rosy shades in the types of foundations and blushers you select. Avoid anything that is too dramatic or drastic.

* Drink plenty of water. Dehydration can increase the risk of injury with regards to the skin, making it more susceptible to dryness and other issues. Be sure to always stay hydrated by consuming enough water to ward off feelings of thirst.

* Experiment with a facial. Facials can help promote blood flow to the skin and improve the appearance of youth and vitality. In addition, a facial massage can feel invigorating. Check with a spa near you to see if they offer facial services. Talk with the staff about your skincare needs and ask for recommendations on the products that may work for you.

Insider tips for winter travel

Winter has much to offer the eager traveler, including smaller crowds and entirely new scenery to admire. Cooler weather can make sightseeing more enjoyable, as it is often easier to warm up than cool down. Although the summer season is popular for travel, the winter months also are a busy time to get away, and being prepared can make traveling go that much smoother. The following are some traveling tips for those who can't wait to get out of the house this winter.

* Expect some setbacks. You never know what kind of weather you may encounter during your trip, therefore be ready to make changes at a moment's notice. Always check flight status or other travel information before leaving home. Weather may delay flights or cause cancellations, so have an alternative plan available if the weather foils the trip.

* Avoid nonrefundable tickets. If weather causes a cancellation, nonrefundable or nonexchangeable tickets can cost you money. Try to get the best price possible on tickets while still affording yourself the opportunity to amend travel plans if need be.

* Book early. Ski resorts are quite popular in the winter, and reservations tend to fill up fast. If you hope to ski or snowboard, make a reservation as early as possible and then shop around for flights or alternative travel methods. If you prefer smaller crowds, plan a trip to a destination that caters more to warm weather activities. Visiting a seaside town or national park can still be beautiful and fulfilling in the winter.

* Get a physical. Visit the doctor and be sure you are up-to-date with all immunizations. Now might be the time to get a flu shot, as traveling in close proximity to others during the winter-time increases your risk of contracting an airborne virus. Getting vaccinated can prevent illness from ruining your trip.

* Pack accordingly. With fickle weather you may have to pack a number of different wardrobe options to remain comfortable. Check the weather and the extended forecast for your destination. Include a number of clothing pieces that can be layered so you will remain cozy outdoors. Bring along comfortable walking shoes, but also pack a pair of winter boots in case the weather turns wet or snowy.

* Purchase travel insurance. Many people prefer to safeguard their travel investments with the purchase of travel insurance. While there are a number of companies to contact, insurance also may be offered through your credit card company provided you use that card to finance the trip. Should you need to cancel a trip for weather or illness, travel insurance can protect your financial outlay and you may get a refund for the full price of the trip.

Vacation insurance plans also may include enhanced emergency medical coverage, trip interruption coverage due to professional obligations or involuntary job loss, or 24-hour travel assistance services.

* Pack something to protect your skin. Cold weather doesn't mean you don't need to protect your skin from the elements. The cold wind and winter sun are still powerful enough to cause damage. Wear ample sunscreen when traveling outdoors, and use a moisturizer to combat cold, dry air.

Although many people flock to warmer climates in the winter, embracing the snow and chilly air and visiting a cool-weather destination can make for an ideal trip.

Hendrick is an unusual upscale duplex

By Associated Designs

If you fail to notice the two doors on the front, you might easily conclude that the Hendrick is a large country-style home. Which it is. But it's also a non-traditional duplex.

The interior floor plans are similar, but not mirror images, and Unit A, on the right, is about 200 square feet larger. Instead of the usual arrangement where garage doors face the street, these garage doors open on the left side of the home.

In each unit, a coat closet, a small bathroom and stairs are just inside the front door. C-shaped kitchens come next, backing up to each other along a shared central wall. These are open to the bright and spacious living and dining areas, across counters with flush eating bars. Natural light washes in through wide side windows, as well as wide window sets at the rear of the living room. Utility rooms are tucked in behind the kitchens, and entered from the dining area.

Unit A's kitchen is larger, and the roomy covered patio at the rear is accessed via the dining room's sliding doors. The pass-through utility room offers direct access to a deep garage. Unit B's smaller covered patio is on the side, and direct entry to the garage is at the rear of the dining area, just outside the utility room.

Each has three bedrooms and two bathrooms upstairs. Owners' suites have walk-in closets and two-section bathrooms where the toilet and shower can be closed off for privacy and steam containment.

The Hendrick's secondary bedrooms line up along the sides, and they share bathrooms at the rear. Each comes complete with its own towel closet plus a combination tub and shower. Roomy storage closets line the hallway across from the bedrooms.

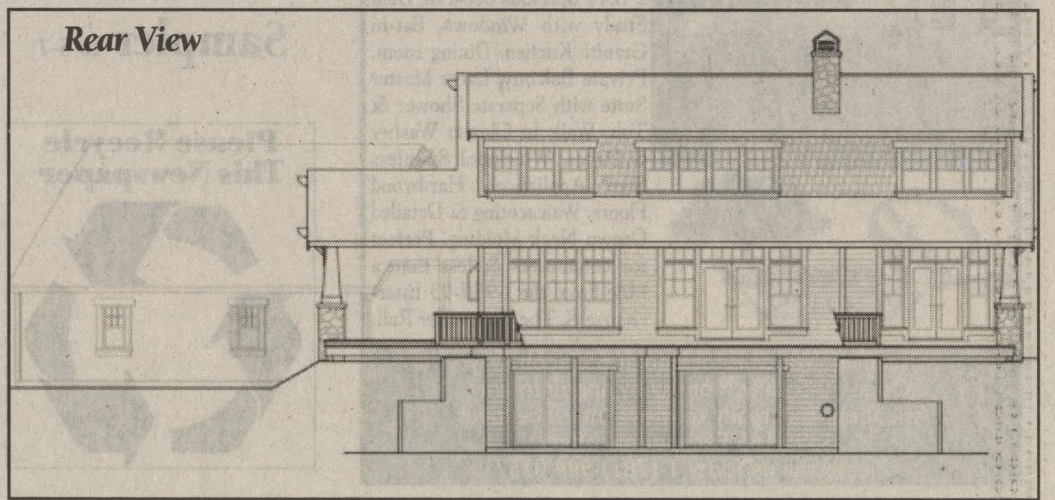

Visit AssociatedDesigns.com for more information or to search our home plans. A review plan of the Hendrick 60-034, including floor plans, elevations, section, and artist's conception, can be purchased for $25. Our home plan catalog, featuring 550 home plans, costs $15. Both are available online, by mail or phone. Add $5 s/h. Associated Designs, 1100 Jacobs Dr., Eugene, OR 97402, (800) 634-0123.

Sampler From S-8

Pocket doors in the kitchen conceal a large utility room. Its exterior door opens to a sheltered walkway that links the house to the three-car garage.

In the owners' suite, closets fill the walls on both sides of a TV space, and double doors lead out onto the rear deck.

Two bedrooms, two bathrooms, and a large loft with a fireplace are upstairs in the Cedarbrook, along with a spacious bonus room.

This Week's Sampler: The Cedarbrook

Craftsman styling highlights Cedarbrook

The elegant simplicity of Craftsman-style homes tends to evoke a gentle nostalgia, and the Cedarbrook is as evocative as they come. Iconic Craftsman windows sparkle on all sides, and tapered columns sit on stone veneer bases that highlight the front facade of this updated bungalow.

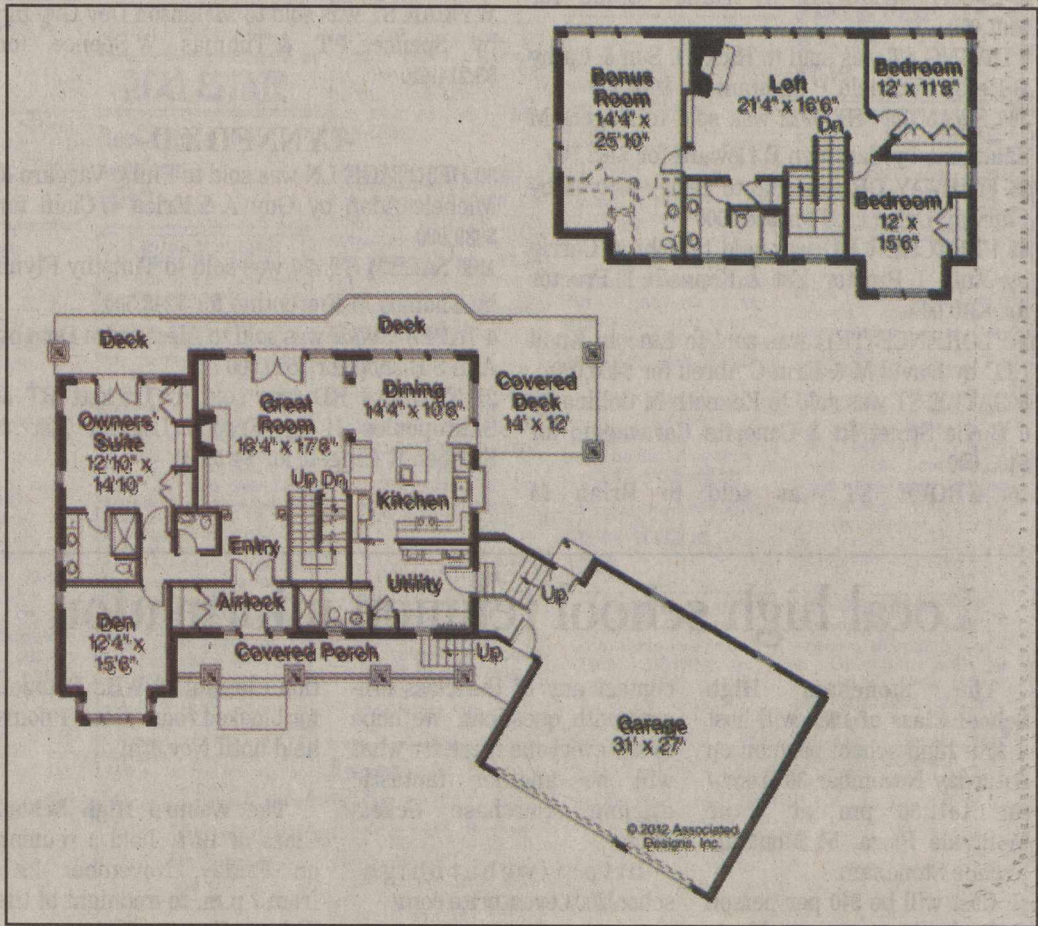

Entering, you step onto an airlock porch with a coat closet. Double doors open into the entry. A powder room is to the left, off a short hallway that leads to the owners' suite and den/office.

Square columns flank the passageway that flows into the naturally bright great room. Another set of columns marks the opening to the dining room and kitchen. Bookcases fill the walls on both sides of a fireplace on the room's opposite side. Transoms crown the parade of wide windows that line the rear of both the great room and the dining room. One set opens onto the deck.

A work island with a prep sink sits at the juncture of the kitchen and dining room, as does a built-in dinette with benches on each side. Both can double as buffet service counters for the dining room. A door to the covered deck is on the right. This deck is open to an uncovered deck that spans the entire rear.
